Result of examination:

A few light to dark brown Caucasian head hairs, which have been forcibly removed from the scalp, were found in the Q1 debris. However, due to the effects of weathering on these hairs, they are unsuitable for significant comparisons with head hairs of known origin. Numerous Caucasian body hairs, limb hairs and hair fragments, most of which have been forcibly removed from the skin, were also found in specimen Q1. These hairs and hair fragments are also unsuitable for significant comparisons with similar hairs of known origin. None of the above-mentioned hairs or hair fragments exhibit the effects of force, other than that previously described, the effects of fire or the effects of artificial treatment.

The Q2 skeletal remains were examined by Dr. J. Lawrence Angel, Curator of Physical Anthropology, Smithsonian Institution, Washington, D. C. Dr. Angel's report is being furnished to your agency as an enclosure to this report.

Specimens Q1 and Q2 are being returned under separate cover by registered mail.

Memorandum

Department of Anthropology, Smithsonian Institution

SUBJECT: Partial human skeleton

The remains include: skull vault lacking almost all occiput, left vertex to nose root, face; vertebrae C3, T11 and 12, L3, left ribs # 1 - 5, 9, 11, right ribs # 5, 8 - 11 with some ends broken post-mortem; pelvis; left humerus, right clavicle + scapula, femora, right tibia and fibula, right talus. The bone is generally tan color from soil staining (sandy dark soil with remains) but the right lower extremity and skull are sun-bleached white, indicating decay in a partly sheltered wooded (?) area and scattering. Remnants of dried ligaments at knees and a shred of scalp in the right vertex area contrast with some weathering cracks and the beginning of spongy bone decay and suggest sharp temperature change in a rather dry area; this fits the animal gnawing (rodents?) on right knee and left shoulder. Time since death may be from under two to five years (conceivably more) if death in the cool season explains persistence of some soft tissue.

Sex criteria are male.

Age criteria are from 20 (skull) to 27 years.

Race appears White based on limb proportions, pelvis, and 2 wavy brown hairs sticking to the scalp remnants.

Stature estimate is from 67 3/4 to 70 1/2" and build is average to slender.

Unfortunately there are no teeth for identification.

Possible identifying traits include: inward bowing of humerus; healed fractures of front part of right ilium and of front lips of bearing surfaces of right hip socket with consequent wear on the head-neck junction of the femur by the labrum and/or the ring fibers of the capsule (the left side shows a lesser degree of this same stress-wear, and a congenital obtuse femur neck angle may contribute); the preserved two vertebrae from the bottom end of the thoracic series suggest a very slight lateral curve with convexity to the left, and also show Schmorl herniations of the disks into the vertebral bodies; the skull vault seems a bit small (but restoration is uncertain).

Possibly the skeletal damage to back and right hip occurred in a single accident (motorcycle? parachute-jumping?, a fall?) several years ago.

The fresh breaks of the shattered skull vault might in part have occurred at death (or soon after). A "dent" near the cartilage end of left rib #4 and a 5 - 10° inward bending fracture of right rib #9 in the mid-axillary line (but not on ribs 8 or 10) may also have occurred at death.

Re Butte airtel to Portland, 12/27/78.

Enclosed for Seattle is a business card of D. B. COOPER, Director, Airline Jump Operations, Cooper's Sky Diving School, Sky Harbor Field, Salem, Oregon.

As evidenced by the information contained in the enclosed card furnished Seattle, it appears the card is a novelty item of no investigative value. There is no Sky Harbor Field located at Salem, Oregon.

On 1/4/79, inquiries with officials at the Salem, Oregon, airport and the Salem Flight Service determined there are no sky diving schools located at Salem.

UAC Seattle, no additional inquiries will be made regarding Cooper's Sky Diving School.

Re New York airtel dated 7/24/72.

On August 15, 1972, , Para-Gear Equipment Company, 5138 North Broadway, Chicago, Illinois, advised his company is one of the largest mail order sport parachuting equipment supply houses in the United States. He and have little direct contact with their customers. He has reviewed his files and the name COOPER does not appear.

advised he is from the Seattle area and came to Chicago one year ago. While in Seattle he sport parachuted for six years. He stated he did not recall having met anyone he felt could be identical to unknown subject.

stated in his opinion the person responsible for the hijacking is not a sport parachutist. He bases this opinion on the theory that sport parachutists have an emotional attachment to their equipment, and probably would not perform a jump with equipment not known to them. From the accounts he read concerning the hijacking he assumes the hijacker had military parachuting experience.

He further advised that the military does not have an equivalent plane similar to the Northeast Airline planes utilized by subject of this case. He stated the military (air-borne unites) do jump from jets, but they use a 141, which is a cargo jet and exit from the side door. He stated he does not know of any sky diving clubs in the United States that jump from any type of jet aircraft.

Re Phoenix letter to Kansas City, 3/15/72.

The following investigation was conducted by SA [REDACTED]

b6
b7C

AT TOPEKA, KANSAS:

On March 31, 1972, [REDACTED]
Forbes Air Force Base, advised he has a drop zone known as Skyport, Inc., at Tucson, Arizona, and has been an active participant in sports parachuting for several years. He observed the artist's conception of the unknown subject in this case and advised this person is unknown to him, nor does he know anyone engaged in sport parachuting or parachuting activity who is similar in appearance. He advised he had previously seen this drawing in a sport parachuting magazine and noted the person was reportedly about forty years of age.
He advised he has never known anyone participating in sport parachuting who is that old.

Date of transcription 12/3/71

[redacted]
[redacted], phone [redacted], a passenger on Northwest flight 305, on November 24, 1971, provided the following information:

b6
b7C

After the airplane landed in Seattle, she observed the hijacker leave the seat in which he was seated and proceeded to the restroom at the rear of the plane. He remained there for about a minute. When he returned from the restroom, she observed the hijacker carrying a dark colored attache case in both of his arms. The case was on its side. On top of the case was a bag.

[redacted] described this bag as follows:

b6
b7C

Approximately 4" deep, width and height approximately the same as the width and height of the attache case. The bag was of cloth composition, possibly manila or burlap. The bag was of a light color, possibly very light yellow and possibly with a very light pink tinge. [redacted] stated that she thinks the bag was fairly smooth on the side which was up. [redacted] stated she did not, at anytime, see what was in the bag. She has no idea what was in the bag.

 SA [REDACTED]:

AT MUSKOGEE, OKLAHOMA

On 2/2/72, U. S. Deputy Marshal [REDACTED] advised he [REDACTED] of the Tahlequah Sky Divers Club at Tahlequah, Oklahoma. [REDACTED] advised there are approximately 30 members in the Club and none of the them are at all similar to the artist's conception of DAN COOPER nor is there anyone in the club with a name similar to DAN COOPER. [REDACTED] advised the Sky Diver World Meet is scheduled to take place at Tahlequah, Oklahoma, during August of 1972, and the National Meet taking place between June 19 and 27, 1972. [REDACTED] advised [REDACTED] of Tahlequah, Oklahoma, would head the committee for the World Meet and he [REDACTED] would help on the committee for the National Meet at Tahlequah. [REDACTED] advised he will be happy to circulate the photo of the artist's conception among members of the Tahlequah Sky Divers during the coming meets to attempt to locate DAN COOPER.

UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT

Memorandum

TO : SAC, ALEXANDRIA

DATE: 12/30/71

FROM : [Signature] RICHMOND (164-74) -P-

SUBJECT: MURKIN
(OO: SEATTLE)

In an effort to locate and identify sky diving clubs in the Richmond, Virginia territory, contact was made with Federal Aviation Administration (FAA), GADO, Byrd Field, Sandston, Virginia, and although FAA does not license these clubs, they did maintain a list of clubs in their territory, which was compiled in 1967.

The list furnished by FAA does not cover the Virginia counties of Rockingham, Greene, Madison, Culpeper and Stafford and all counties of Virginia north of these. These counties are covered by the FAA, FSDO, Washington National Airport, Washington, D. C.

Furthermore, the FAA list did not cover Virginia counties Giles, Pulaski and Carroll or the Virginia counties west of these. The counties in this area are covered by the FAA, GADO, Kanawha County Airport, Administration Building, Charleston, West Virginia.

The following sky diver clubs as furnished by FAA are located in the Norfolk territory:

1. Norfolk Sky Divers - to be contacted through [Redacted] Newport News, Virginia.

2. Peninsula Sky divers - to be contacted through [Redacted] Yorktown, Virginia.

3. Tidewater Navy Sky Divers - to be contacted through the U. S. Naval Amphibious Base, Little Creek, Virginia. This club meets at NAS, Oceana, Virginia.

COOPER IS NOT 'ROBIN HOOD'

Despite some attempts to prove otherwise through opportunism and commercialism, the person who labels himself as "D. B. Cooper" is--if he is still alive--no modern-day Robin Hood. He is a thief and a criminal of the highest order. He demonstrated more than passing knowledge of the air environment, especially parachuting. It is possible that "D. B. Cooper's" path may have crossed that of airline personnel--and airline pilots--at some time under another name. He is reported to have a bitter hatred against the airlines--he may have worked for one.

For these reasons PILOT BULLETIN is printing the specifications of the criminal that extorted $200,000 from Northwest Airlines on Nov. 24, 1971. Two artist drawings of "Cooper" are included in the hopes they may prod the memories of ALPA members who may have seen or known him in the past.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation describes the man as follows:

Race: White
Age: Mid-40s

Artists sketch of Cooper with and without glasses

Height: 5 feet 10 inches to 6 feet

Weight: 170 to 180 pounds

Build: Average to well built

Complexion: Olive, Latin appearance, medium smooth

Hair: Dark brown or black, normal style, parted on left, combed back, sideburns, low ear level

Eyes: Possibly brown; during latter part of flight put on dark wrap-around sunglasses with dark rims

Voice: Low, spoke intelligently, no particular accent

Characteristic: Heavy smoker of Raleigh filter-tip cigarettes

Wearing apparel: Black suit, white shirt, narrow black tie, black dress suit, black rain-type overcoat or dark topcoat, brown shoes; carried paper bag 4 inches by 12 inches by 14 inches and dark briefcase or attache case

If you have any information which might lead to the identity of this individual, please contact the nearest FBI office.

ALPA PRESSES FOR ACTION ON MID-AIR COLLISIONS

Pointing to a "needless slaughter" resulting from 70 mid-air collisions of U. S. airliners in the past 25 years, ALPA urged congressional action to make collision-avoidance equipment a mandatory requirement for all aircraft operating in government-controlled airspace.

In testimony before the Senate Subcommittee on Aviation on Dec. 1, the Association emphasized the increasing hazards of mid-air accidents. A study made by the Department of Transportation, ALPA said, projected that by 1980 there would be approximately 10 mid-air collisions occurring each year. In 1971, there were four such tragedies.

ALPA recommended two government actions that should be taken immediately to reduce or eliminate the mid-air collision hazard:

"The first of these requires an immediate decision on the part of the U. S. government that the use of an adequate collision avoidance system or proximity warning indicator should be made mandatory for every aircraft operated within controlled airspace.

"The other action requires that the Federal Aviation Administration take a more realistic and sophisticated approach to inflight segregation of military and general aviation aircraft from airline and other high performance civil aircraft."

In addition to these recommendations, ALPA asked for a live evaluation of the several collision avoidance systems now available. Recognizing that installation of these systems would entail particular burdens for light plane owner, ALPA called for development of a plan to help them finance this hardware.

Although ALPA does not endorse any particular equipment now being offered as solutions to the collision problem, it supported the Senate bill under consideration (S. 2264), which would facilitate the installation of collision avoidance devices. "The establishment of definite compliance dates," ALPA said, "will also emphasize the urgency of the problem and take it out of the 'study' category."

FAA Continuing Taxiway - Exit

Identification Lighting Test At JFK And Newark

The September 1971 PILOT BULLETIN announced the beginning of testing of taxiway exit lighting on Newark runway 4L-22R. Now the test is ready to be implemented at JFK runway 31R-13L. The runway ends show red threshold lights at the far ends. Green flush centerline lights at runway and taxiway intersections are the main features of the test, along with green curved lead-out lights at the center taxiway exit.

The airlines have probably already issued information and procedures to pilots operating into these airports. FAA will provide additional information. ALPA requests that pilots cooperate in this evaluation. Please send a copy of your conclusions to the ALPA Engineering and Air Safety Department for information purposes.

ALLEGHENY - MOHAWK LABOR PROTECTIVE PROVISIONS RECOMMENDED

For the second time in less than a week a CAB hearing examiner supported a position long urged by ALPA and recommended sweeping changes in the labor protective conditions traditionally imposed in merger cases. (PILOT BULLETIN, November, page 1). In his recommended decision approving the Allegheny-Mohawk merger, Examiner Merritt Ruhlen rejected the position of the carriers that the so-called "standard" provisions first imposed in the United-Capital merger case over a decade ago should be imposed again without change. Addressing himself directly to the changes in the provisions recommended by ALPA, Ruhlen wrote: "It is necessary to consider the suggested changes on their merits rather than to rely on a decision of 10 years ago made in a different economic climate upon a different factual basis."

Ruhlen's recommended decision endorsed the following changes in the standard provisions urged by ALPA:

(1) A shifting of the burden of proof under the United-Capital formula so that a claiming employee would be required to do nothing more than show that a merger occurred and that his condition of employment changed adversely. Should the employer contend that the change was the result of some factor other than the merger, the burden would be on the employer to establish that contention through the production of evidence. (Under the United-Capital formula, an employee must carry the virtually impossible burden of showing that his change in employment was caused "solely" by the merger and no other cause.)

(2) A change in the compensation for a displaced employee to include average compensation during the base period plus "subsequent wage increases" for the duration of the protection period. (United-Capital excluded all such increases.)

(3) A change in the base period used for determining average compensation to the one-year period "immediately prior to (the employee's) displacement" rather than one year prior to the merger as under the United-Capital provisions.

(4) An extension of the protective provisions' coverage to all employees whose job status may be changed by a carrier's rearranging of its work force in anticipation of a merger regardless of the date on which such a rearrangement actually takes place.

Examiner Ruhlen's decision is now subject to review and amendment by the full CAB as well as final approval by President Nixon before it may take effect. ALPA attorneys have filed briefs in both the Delta-Northeast and Allegheny-Mohawk merger cases urging that the specific differences of the alteration in labor protective provisions recommended by the two hearing examiners be rationalized in such a manner as to preserve the most substantial changes in the old and inadequate United-Capital formula.

BOSTON PILOTS BRIEFED ON BENEFITS

Pilot retirement and insurance benefits was the subject of a presentation by ALPA's Retirement and Insurance Department in early December. The purpose of the experimental program was to present directly to pilots an analysis of their benefits and options in both the retirement and insurance areas.

Eastern pilots' benefits were chosen for the analysis and the presentation was made at Boston's Logan Airport on Dec. 2-3 by ALPA Field Representative Rhoads Donovan and Insurance Analyst Stuart Hall.

The program was a formal presentation by both representatives with the help of visual aids that outlined the Eastern Pilots' Fixed (A) and Variable

(B) Retirement Benefit Plans and the Group Insurance Program. Pilots were encouraged to ask questions and forms were provided for more detailed problems that could be answered through the Retirement and Insurance Department at ALPA's Home Office in Washington.

The experimental presentation was basically successful. One problem area, however, was the lack of sufficient advance notice, which resulted in a small attendance. Both representatives felt that although attendance was minimal, the information program proved worthwhile and was well received by the pilots who were able to attend.

PILOTS SHOULD SPECIFY PAYMENTS

Inasmuch as the new dues and insurance system has billed both 1972 dues and insurance, when remitting your payment please allocate your remittance to dues and/or insurance in the space provided on the remittance stub. Should such an allocation be omitted, your remittance will be allocated by the computer.

RUNWAY AT GREATER WILMINGTON AIRPORT REOPENED

ALPA has been notified as of Nov. 15, the East West (9-27) Runway at the Greater Wilmington (Del.) Airport was reopened after complete strengthening over its 7,000-foot length to 250,000 pounds maximum gross weight tandem wheel loading.

ALPA EXECUTIVE BOARD MEETS

The Executive Board of the Association resolved at its 14th meeting (Dec. 7-10) in Washington to register "total opposition" to FAA's proposal to impose responsibility for medical certification and surveillance of flight crew members upon the individual air carriers. The Board directed the Aero-medical-Flight Time/Duty Time Committee "to take any and all steps it feels are necessary to prevent the adoption" of the proposal and instructed the Association's President to "provide the necessary support and resources," and including "if necessary" reconvening the Executive Board for consideration "of other appropriate courses of action."

The Board, after lengthy discussion concerning the impact of the Aloha arbitration award on ALPA's crew complement policy, reaffirmed its "full and vigorous support of the crew complement policy and of all existing agreements and awards establishing the same." The Board said that consistent with the Nov. 23 arbitration award (which it noted "applied and interpreted the Association's policy as being founded on safety as related to the operating conditions and environment of the carrier involved") and consistent with past practice, the Boeing 737 crew complement policy is interpreted to require "with the concurrence of the Executive Committee and the President" that the MEC on each airline involved assess that airline's conditions and environmental factors "and reach a determination as to the basis of implementation" of the crew complement policy. The Board ordered the President to "cause the Association to provide full support to such determinations" and to conclude agreements that give full effect to such determinations.

Finally, the Board said the President and the Executive Committee should study and evaluate "crew coordination and operating techniques on all airline jet aircraft."

Other actions taken by the Executive Board include the following:

- ▶ Supported the Airworthiness and Performance Committee in its concern over the use of reduced-thrust takeoff procedures.
- ▶ Referred a proposal that ALPA initiate an aggressive policy with FAA to establish positive control, climb and descent corridors, "a high-

WARNING - NO IMMUNITY!

Pilots are warned that, effective Dec. 31, 1971, they are no longer provided with immunity when Near Mid-air Collision Reports (FAA Form 8020-1) are filed.

President John J. O'Donnell attempted to persuade FAA to retain the immunity provision, but so far, without success. The ATC Committee will again seek to convince FAA that the near mid-air reporting program is useless without some protection being given to the pilot and controller, alike. As additional information becomes available, it will be reported in ALPA publications.

ly complicated subject," to the National ATC Committee, the national committee involved with this problem.

▶ Noted that "it is in the best interest of" ALPA "to present a unified position to the government and industry on those subject areas which affect the entire membership" and resolved "that before any pilot group or representing body of the Association takes action on subjects under the purview of an ALPA national committee and not covered by ALPA policy, the proposed action be brought to the attention of the responsible national committees for their review and analysis to ensure a coordinated position."

▶ Directed the President "to actively pursue" ALPA policy, adopted in 1962, "to work to bring international flight duty time limits into line with domestic FAR limits."

▶ Directed the Association to institute a procedure of withholding dues from flight pay loss checks.

▶ Noted that the use of "Air Line Pilots" in the name of any organization, other than ALPA "is confusing and misleading to the membership, the public, the government and the industry and might be harmful to the public image of the Association," and resolved "that all members so involved refrain from any activities which generate the impression that they or their organization, association or firm acts in behalf of or under the jurisdiction

LATE NEWS ROUND-UP

● Revised ALPA merger policy has been adopted by the Executive Board (see page 2).

● The Department of Transportation is investigating the manner in which a Delta 880 was contaminated by radioactive leakage. DOT is attempting to determine whether the cause was from faulty packaging or from handling damage.

● CAB examiner is against AAL-WAL merger plan (see page 4).

● PATCO says FAA has fired four more controllers for their actions during a "sickout" in March 1970, bringing the number of dismissed controllers to 80. Thirty-eight of the 80 have won their jobs back through appeals procedures and the courts.

● ALPA opposes DOT action in AAL-WAL merger case (see page 5).

● NTSB and FAA officials say that a National Airlines 747, which ran afoul of turbulence, did so as the crew picked its way through thunderstorm cells using airborne radar.

● Pilots should specify payments (see page 8).

► Conferred a Commendation Award of appreciation for exceptional performance as a pilot member of the Association upon Captain E. M. Long, Flying Tiger Council 98, who on Dec. 3, 1971, completed a solo 28-day around-the-world flight covering 36,000 miles in 215 flying hours in his twin-engine Piper Navajo, setting eight world records including first flight around the world landing on all seven continents, first solo flight around the world at the poles, and first flight crossing the Equator at both the prime and 180th meridians.

► Noted that the finance charge on loss of license semiannual premium payments has caused concern and misunderstanding and instructed the Retirement & Insurance Committee to explain to ALPA membership, through the PILOT BULLETIN, the necessity for the finance charge.

► Adopted the 1972 budget, with conditions, including Executive Committee review and restrictions on reducing individual MEC budgets.

► Deferred action until the next regular Executive Board meeting on proposed guidelines for printing and mailing charges for council minutes, bulletins and news publications, pending a review of costs.

► Resolved that the Association "strongly opposes" the American Airlines-Western Air Lines merger and ordered action "to make known its position on this pending merger before the appropriate government bodies."

► Directed the National Air Safety Coordinating Committee and the Airworthiness and Performance Committee in coordination with the Engineering and Air Safety Department to conduct a comprehensive study of the most effective means for pilot monitoring of potential hazards to aircraft in service to be presented for consideration of the 15th Executive Board meeting, and delayed implementation of a resolution of the 13th Executive Board regarding monitoring of airworthiness directives, service bulletins, etc.

► Changed administrative procedures to extend the grace period for payment of Association obligations to 60 days for purposes of determining bad-standing status, and noted that this change does not amend current practices covering finance charges for delayed payments.

Revised Merger Policy Adopted By Executive Board

One of the more important actions at the Executive Board at its December 1971 meeting was the adoption of the new Merger Policy.

The major change in the new policy is the elimination of the "Method 1/Method 2" membership balloting processing and insertion of a step procedure for utilization of merger representatives as a guide to the solution of their seniority list integration problems.

The new merger policy is not applicable to any merger already pending or announced unless the respective pilot groups mutually agree to use it.

The new policy also provides safeguards to delay action on merger of seniority lists until there is "reasonable assurance" that the merger will be approved and the government award is acceptable to the involved companies.

Nominees Sought For Air Safety Award

The ALPA Engineering and Air Safety Department is calling for nominations for the 1972 Annual Air Safety Award, which will be presented at the ALPA Air Safety Forum, May 22-25, at the Mayflower Hotel in Washington.

Procedures established for the selection of the recipient of the Award state that each local council may submit to the MEC chairman a candidate or candidates for the award and each MEC chairman may submit to the Association the name of its candidate or candidates. Final selection is then made by the Executive Committee.

Each council should submit its nominations to the MEC chairman as early as possible because MEC chairmen are requested to forward the nominations to ALPA Secretary John Giberson no later than March 10.

New Loss Of License Classification Established

The Executive Board, at its December meeting, established a Group Member Class under the Loss of License contract issued by Equitable Life Assurance Society. It is specifically designed to accommodate any pilot groups on whose behalf ALPA has negotiated Loss of License contracts. This classification allows the Group Member to have an additional amount of Loss of License benefit separate and apart from his coverage under the ALPA program, if any, to a combined maximum benefit of $2,000 regardless of income and up to $2,500 overall maximum if justified by income.

ALPA Blasts Administration Proposals To Increase Government Intervention In Labor Disputes

Nixon administration proposals to limit the right of airline employees to take walkout actions in deadlocked labor disputes "would constitute nothing less than a revolution in American labor relations," ALPA charged at a hearing before the Senate Subcommittee on Labor.

Under proposed revisions to the Railway Labor Act, the President would have authority to broaden the scope of government intervention in labor negotiations, thus averting possible walkouts that could tie up air service.

In a statement by the Association, it was pointed out that since 1933 there have been over 500 collective bargaining agreements reached with airline pilot groups represented by ALPA. Throughout this 38-year period, there have been only 14 pilot strikes and only five of these lasted over 30 days.

The public interest, ALPA added, is more seriously jeopardized by the airlines' Mutual Aid Pact—a "strike insurance" program under which funds from subscribing carriers are given to a struck airline. ALPA charged that a recent trend to strikes of longer duration is the direct result of the availability of Mutual Aid funds. "The carriers have only themselves to blame," ALPA said.

A key provision in the proposal would offer one of three new options to the President as a "final solution" to labor disputes. Each involves increasing levels of government intervention following an 80-day "cooling off" period now required when parties cannot reach agreement on contracts.

The most severe measure would be mandatory reopening of bargaining on "final offers" submitted by both sides. If agreement still cannot be reached, the President would name a three-man board, called "selectors," who would choose one of the offers, without modification, as the final settlement.

Disputing the proposal, ALPA said: "In a free society, employees and employers retain the power to settle their own economic disputes...rather than transfer this power to third-party 'experts.' Instead, solutions to labor disputes must be discovered by and acceptable to the parties who must live with them. Anything else is too remote and illusory to last."

ALPA stressed that federal labor legislation has "traditionally been aimed at establishing the mechanics and procedures of collective bargaining—not at determining the substance of the bargains themselves. Management's responsibility to bargain should not be assumed by Congress."

The Association said it saw merit in a feature of the administration proposal that would establish a commission to make a two-year study of labor relations in industries "particularly vulnerable to national emergency disputes."

It was suggested that the study include such topics as: The value of permanent "neutrals," causes of delay in grievance handling, the effectiveness of "tripartite" arbitration, statistics on prearbitration settlements and needed reforms in present grievance-arbitration procedures.

We're Making Progress

The federal sky marshal program was in the news on several fronts this month as it became known that funds for the effort will probably be cut by about one-third in the next federal budget. A United Press International story noted that since the program started in September 1970, the government has trained 1,500 marshals "but they have yet to thwart an inflight hijacking."

CBS News asked the question, "The sky marshal program: has it been successful?" on the CBS Evening News with Walter Cronkite on Jan. 4. Among participants in the report, which presented viewpoints of various segments of the airline industry, were ALPA Executive Administrator Jack Bavis and Captain Cliff Wolff (UAL). Highlights of the TV report included the lack of security at airport terminals and the need for international agreements to cover the return and prosecution of hijackers.

In both the UPI story and the TV report, ALPA stressed that the majority of sky marshals could serve more effectively at airport gates rather than aboard aircraft.

Committees

Participated in Executive Committee Meeting. Participated in Executive Board Meeting Dec. 7-10. Met with 1972 Air Safety Forum Policy Guidelines Committee.

Legislative

Appeared before Senator Howard Cannon's (D-Nev.) Subcommittee on Aviation concerning Senator Moss's bill on collision avoidance systems. Represented by Legal Department Director Gary Green before Senator Harrison Williams (D-N.J.) concerning the Railway Labor Act where a statement representing ALPA's views was read. Other senators sitting at the time were Robert Packwood (R-Ore.), Robert Taft (R-Ohio), Harold Hughes (D-Iowa), and Adlai Stevenson (D-Ill.). The next session of Congress opens Jan. 18 and ALPA is preparing for an active year.

Other

Worked on 1972 budget. Responded to FAA's rejection of ALPA's Proposal for Accelerated Installation of Airport Facilities. Involved with problems associated with Hughes Aircraft strike of American Mechanics Fraternal Association members. Attended UAL Council 11 annual retirement party together with First VP Al Bonner and Executive Administrator Jack Bavis. Appeared as featured guest of United Press International's Washington Window, heard on 400 U. S. radio stations, which focused on such topics as the need for improved airport security and ALPA's expedited airport facilities program. Inspected ALPA's new Home Office building with First VP Bonner. Attended Wright Day Dinner honoring Senator Howard W. Cannon together with First VP Bonner, Executive Administrator Bavis, Region Four VP Marion Wright, UAL Master Chairman William Argensolt and SCS Division Secretary-Treasurer Maggie Jacobsen. Appeared on City Desk on WMAQ-TV Chicago with Captain Dick Schultz (UAL) and discussed airport safety and security. A portion of the show was later used on the NBC-TV network.

CAB EXAMINER AGAINST AAL-WAL MERGER PLAN

CAB Hearing Examiner William Madden recommended on Dec. 20 that the proposed merger between Western and American be denied. If approved, he said, the merged pattern of service would "seriously disrupt" the nation's air transportation system, particularly on West Coast and Pacific routes. Further, he predicted that the creation of a supercarrier would totally "upset the balance" between larger and smaller trunkline service.

In his 80-page decision, Madden stressed that the merger of a big four airline and another trunk carrier is not in the public interest.

He also noted the availability of improved labor-protective provisions as recommended in the Delta-Northeast and Allegheny-Mohawk cases, should the Board decide to approve the American-Western merger.

Madden's initial decision will be reviewed along with other recommendations before a final decision on the case is reached by CAB. Final approval must be given by President Nixon since the proposed merger involves international routes.

Madden's decision was hailed by ALPA as "a clear recognition of the need to preserve the nation's competitive system of commercial air service."

In a statement Dec. 21, ALPA stressed that the merger, if approved, would lead to the creation of multi-billion-dollar "supercarrier," diverting revenues from other airlines and weakening their market position.

"Inevitably," ALPA said, "this would lead to a series of defensive mergers, thus further deteriorating levels of competition and service."

The Association's Executive Board, recently took action "cohesively opposing" the American-Western merger.

The U. S. Justice Department and CAB's Bureau of Operating Rights have also recommended that the merger be rejected.

Nominating ballots are to be returned to the council chairman no later than the time and date of council meetings advertised for the purpose of nominating local council representatives. Any member of the above councils who does not receive a ballot should contact David E. Halpin, director, Council and Administrative Services, in the Home Office, or his council chairman.

HAZARDOUS MATERIAL PROBLEM INFORMATION BOUGHT

Any pilot having experienced hazardous material cargo transportation problems should get in touch with ALPA Executive Administrator Jack Bayis at the Home Office.

ELECTION BALLOTS TO BE COUNTED JAN. 21 AT HOME OFFICE

The Election and Ballot Certification Board will meet at the Home Office on Jan. 21 to check, open and tally the following elections. Any active member in good standing is entitled to be present to observe the ballot count. Chairman and vice chairman elections: AWI 111, AAA 32, DAL 131, SEA 132, PAI 121 and PAA 61. Captain representative election: AAA 138. Copilot representative elections: TWA 25, UNI 119 (and flight officer representative). Secretary-treasurer elections: TWA 24 and PAI 122.

COUNCIL ELECTIONS TO FILL VACANCIES SCHEDULED THIS MONTH

Elections to fill vacancies are being conducted by the following councils. Any active member who did not receive a ballot, has lost his ballot or wishes to change his vote should contact David E. Halpin, director of Council and Administrative Services at the Home Office. Elections and their deadline dates are: Flying Tiger Council 97: chairman and vice chairman, Jan. 27. Piedmont Council 121: chairman and vice chairman, Jan. 28. TWA Council 4: copilot representative, Jan. 31. Capitol International Council 141: captain representative, Jan. 31.

TENTATIVE AGENDA SET FOR '72 AIR SAFETY FORUM

"What Price Air Safety?" will be the theme of the 1972 ALPA Air Safety Forum to be held May 23-25 at the Mayflower Hotel in Washington. Captain Richard Heller, Region Three safety chairman, has been named general chairman of the 19th annual Pilot Division meeting. The 10th S&S Division Forum will convene one day earlier for closed sessions.

Tentative agenda for the Pilot Forum calls for closed sessions on Tuesday afternoon (May 23), with meetings of the five regional safety committees scheduled for that evening.

Open sessions begin on Wednesday morning (May 24) with a welcome by the ALPA President. The Wednesday morning program will discuss today's big safety problem--hijacking. A Wednesday afternoon session will consider disaster planning, and be followed by a discussion of two-segment approaches and noise-abatement procedures.

Thursday morning (May 25) sessions will be concerned with airport safety; specifically the status of airport certification program, and a discussion of ALPA's program to accelerate the installation of needed air-carrier airport facilities. The Forum will break up into workshop action groups on Thursday afternoon with the following tentative subjects: (1) air traffic control and collision avoidance systems; (2) airworthiness and performance, and (3) accident prevention.

ALPA OPPOSES DOT ACTION IN AAL-WAL MERGER CASE

Voicing strong opposition to action taken by the Department of Transportation in the American-Western merger case, ALPA President John J. O'Donnell issued the following statement this month:

"The Air Line Pilots Association is very much alarmed about the intersection of the Department of Transportation into the issue of the American Airlines-Western Air Lines proposed merger. Mr. J. Thomas Tidd, speaking for DOT, has sharply opposed the opinion of CAB Examiner William Madden that the merger should be disapproved. Mr. Madden's opinion that the merger should not be consummated has been concurred in by the Justice Department.

"This development is an excellent example of blatant interference in a matter in which an appointed official--the secretary of transportation--has no personal expertise and proves, beyond any doubt, that he is biased against air transportation. The proposed merger is not within his domain. CAB was deliberately established by a wise Congress to regulate the industry independently of the Department of Transportation and enable it to remain aloof from political measures.

"As president of the Air Line Pilots Association, I wish to state that the Association is firmly opposed to this merger because it would seriously disrupt the delicate balance in the national air transportation system, have a severe impact on the employees involved and would not be in the best interests of the traveling public.

"The CAB examiner should be upheld in this matter. The secretary of transportation should not throw the weight of his office around and attempt to intimidate the board members who must now rule on the question."

NATIONAL AIRLINES PILOT GROUP SIGNS NEW CONTRACT

A new National Airlines pilot contract was signed at the company office in Miami. Taking part in the ceremony were (seated from left): Captain R. W. Pech, master chairman; J. M. Donlan, NAL vice president-industrial relations; (standing) Jack Horner, ALPA staff negotiator; John B. Adams, NAL labor relations analyst; S. J. Kolski, NAL labor relations manager; R. G. Houck, assistant to vice president-flight operations; Captain E. B. Shope, chairman, Negotiating Committee; Captain Loyd E. Kalt, member, Negotiating Committee; Captain C. P. Caudle, MEC vice chairman and Captain R. W. Gaines, member, Negotiating Committee.

NEW AIRLIFT INTERNATIONAL PILOT AGREEMENT REACHED

A new Airlift International pilot agreement was recently reached at the Home Office. Participating in the negotiations (sitting from left) Captain Ralph Chrismon, chairman, Negotiating Committee; President John J. O'Donnell; Warren Lane, National Mediation Board; Charles Hughes, Airlift International vice president-administration; (standing) Flight Engineer Gasper Nisito, member, Negotiating Committee; Captain Harry Davis, member, Negotiating Committee; Captain Tom Jacobs, master chairman; Captain John Shumate, Airlift chief pilot and director of flight operations, and ALPA First Vice President Al Bonner.

ALPA'S Position On Two-Step Approaches

ALPA national committee members have been studying the ramifications of two-segment approaches for several months. Such approaches, involving steep upper glideslopes, which involve rates of descent of nearly 2,000 feet per minute, have been proposed to provide a certain measure of noise relief to communities near airports. Some ALPA members have flown such approaches during controlled experiments and under flight test, laboratory conditions, but despite a strong effort to develop such techniques on the part of the government, the consensus of ALPA participants is that such procedures will not prove feasible for the day-in, day-out airline operating environment. In a Sept. 13 letter to FAA Administrator John H. Shaffer, ALPA President John J. O'Donnell stated: "It is especially ironic since early in the jet transport history many of these same proposals were rejected by the aviation community on the basis of the very safety reasons which are now being ignored." Captain C. C. Jackson, executive secretary of International Federation of Air Line Pilots Associations, wrote to Shaffer on Oct. 13, in the name of member associations: "We feel bound to declare the strongest opposition to this procedure. In doing so in an unambiguous manner we hope to be able to head off an expensive but almost certainly illusory program."

An ad hoc NASA working panel, charged with recommending operational flight procedures to achieve noise relief, meeting on Sept. 23, noted an objective of 10:PNdB noise reduction 1.5 miles from the runway threshold, to be achieved by the two-segment approach method (an upper segment of 6 degrees transitioning to a lower, normal segment of 400 feet above the terrain). The near-term strategy mapped out by this group includes a proposed demonstration program to "sell small groups of line pilots at each airline" on the feasibility of the method, using a current jet transport. The group decided a Boeing 727 would be the "proper" aircraft to be used in the demonstration.

In another action, FAA implemented a two-segment VASI on a trial basis at San Diego. Several ALPA members participated in the initial evaluation of this device. Even though they were flying a DC-6—not a jet transport—one of them commented later: "The FAA's own policy has been opposed to steep approaches, and we have all seen what inadequate runway length can mean to accident statistics, yet suddenly we are faced with a scheme that aggravates both of these conditions."

While such a device may be useful as an aid in terrain avoidance at an airport with particular problems, such as San Diego, responsible groups in ALPA find it disturbing that similar VASIs may be installed elsewhere to put airplanes on steep, high-sink-rate approach paths, strictly for noise relief. The ALPA position, stated by President O'Donnell in his letter to FAA's Shaffer, is that "the solution to the aircraft noise problem must be attained primarily through engineering and design of the engine-airframe combination and not through marginally safe operating procedures."

More recently, one of the airlines evaluated this two-segment VASI with a large jet transport. As a result, the airline sent the following message to all of its pilots: "A VAMSI (Visual Approach Multi-Slope Indicator) has been installed on runway 27 at San Diego to be operated at pilot request. This system has been evaluated by flight management and pilot representatives in a DC-8-62 aircraft. The installation has been deficient and United pilots are cautioned against requesting or using this system. The transition from steep to the normal glideslope occurs too near the ground and the touchdown point is extended well beyond the displaced threshold."

The overall problem of two-segment approaches is being reviewed by four ALPA committees: Airport Evaluation, Airworthiness & Performance, All Weather Flying and ATC. A joint meeting of these committees is planned for early 1972 to consider all aspects of the problem and coordinate ALPA's position as related to the function of each committee.

AIRPORT MANAGERS RECOGNIZE VALIDITY OF AIR LINE PILOT COMMENTS

The following are excerpts from a recent speech by the President of the American Association of Airport Executives, George Bean, in which he gives some thought-provoking remarks to airport managers:

"Lest I be misunderstood, let me emphasize that if all airport managers had always done a perfect job there would not have been a need for 'outsiders' to 'interfere'."

"If we had exerted more effort and had been adequately forceful and convincing in our communities, there could have been more effective control of land use around airports and noise and air pollution complaints would not be as numerous or troublesome as they are..."

"If we had paid more attention to pilot complaints about lighting deficiencies, runway surface defects, better drainage, and off-airport obstructions these pilots would not have felt compelled to demand Airport Certification."

"Many of these pilot-reported deficiencies could have been taken care of quickly and inexpensively if we had given them the attention they deserved..."

"At this time I would like to propose that each of you return to your airport and find just one hazard - or potential hazard - and get it corrected immediately. The results of such a collective action would automatically mean a significant improvement in airport safety..."

It looks like ALPA is getting its message across!

OLD UNIFORMS WANTED

The Smithsonian National Air and Space Museum is looking for old pilot and copilot uniforms and insignia to expand its collection of civil aviation uniforms. Especially needed are uniforms from the '20s and '30s and those of airlines that have gone out of business such as Hanford Airlines, Colonial Airlines, Southwest Airways, Monarch Airlines, American Export Airlines, Mid-Continent Airlines, West Coast Airlines, Penn Central Airlines, Chicago and Southern Airlines. Some current uniforms are also needed.

Donors are asked to send appropriate shirts, ties, belts and footwear, if available, with the uniforms. An early photo of the owner in the uniform would be helpful. Please query before mailing. Address letters to Aeronautics Department, National Air and Space Museum, Smithsonian Institution, Washington, D. C. 20560.

cards of parachutists who have jumped from the Elsinore Paricenter, Inc. 433 registration cards were photographed representing those jumpers who registered at the Elsinore Paricenter, Inc., since 1969 and fit within the physical description limits of 35-55 years of age, 150-190 pounds, and five feet eight inches to six feet one inch in height.

A systematic review of these cards ^{WAS} ~~is~~ being conducted to possibly identify subject, ^{WITH NRG RESULTS}

Registration cards prior to 1969 do not contain height data. Such cards, numbering approximately 18,000, date back to 1957.

On December 10, 1971, flight records for the month of August, 1971 were photographed at the Elsinore Paricenter, Inc. These records contained the last names of the jumpers, the altitude from which they jumped, and the name of the pilot and date.

A review of these flight records December 14-15, 1971 revealed the last names on these records match 31 individuals whose descriptions match those of subject and who jumped from the Elsinore Paricenter during the month of August, 1971. Sixteen of the individuals whose cards were photographed were eliminated as possible suspects by interviews. The remaining 15 possible suspects are ^{WAS} ~~being~~ systematically reviewed in an effort to identify the subject. ^{WAS} ~~5~~ ^{WERE ELIMINATED}

On November 27, 1971 [redacted], a man who is familiar with parachute clubs and jumpers in the southwestern part of Washington and northern part of Oregon, advised that a person jumping from a plane at about 7000 feet who had experience could free fall and while doing so could count to 25 seconds which would then place him at 3000 feet and for this reason no altimeter would be needed. He pointed out that if the subject could have seen the ground there would be no problem in landing if he had experience as a jumper. He further pointed out that his experience as a jumper shows him that the subject would not have needed jump boots, a helmet, jump suit, or any other special equipment for he and other chutists jump in shorts, tennis shoes, and other non-jumping equipment when weather conditions are right. He also pointed out that the subject could land within one mile of a pin point spot picked if he had experience and knew when to jump. Further, he stated the subject would have travelled 1/2 to 3/4 of a mile from the drop line from the plane in a 30 mile per hour wind if he opened his chute at 3000 feet. [redacted] also advised that he could also state that if the subject had experience he would know that the easiest place to put a container with the money would be between his legs and this would not cause any problems on landing or during descent. [redacted] suggested one person whom he thought could be capable of the hijacking and that would be [redacted], who is a good and experienced parachutist and pilot.

[redacted] advised that the parachute clubs in the area he is familiar with are the Pacific Parachute Club which uses Donald airfield 30 miles south of Portland, Oregon, and the Western Sport Parachute Center which uses both the Frink field and the Hockinson field near Vancouver, Washington; he pointed out that Puckett airfield is no longer used as a jump center.

On November 28, 1971 [redacted], Vancouver Piper Aviation, 209 East Reserve Street, Vancouver, Washington, was contacted and advised that he and a group of experienced pilots had been discussing the hijacking and he advanced the theory that in view of the cloud cover on the night of November 24, 1971 only an experienced jumper knowing

In an effort to locate and identify sky diving clubs in the Richmond, Virginia territory, contact was made with Federal Aviation Administration (FAA), GADO, Byrd Field, Sandston, Virginia, and although FAA does not license these clubs, they did maintain a list of clubs in their territory, which was compiled in 1967.

The list furnished by FAA does not cover the Virginia counties of Rockingham, Greene, Madison, Culpeper and Stafford and all counties of Virginia north of these. These counties are covered by the FAA, FSDO, Washington National Airport, Washington, D. C.

Furthermore, the FAA list did not cover Virginia counties Giles, Pulaski and Carroll or the Virginia counties west of these. The counties in this area are covered by the FAA, GADO, Kanawha County Airport, Administration Building, Charleston, West Virginia.

The following sky diver clubs as furnished by FAA are located in the Norfolk territory:

1. Norfolk Sky Divers - to be contacted through

[redacted]
[redacted] California, was interviewed at the Skylark Airport at Elsinore, California, and furnished the following information:

b6
b7C

Upon hearing the newscasts and reading the papers concerning the skyjacking of a commercial aircraft in Seattle, Washington, on November 24, 1971, and upon seeing an artists conception of the individual who perpetrated this crime.

[redacted] advised he believes he talked to a man who closely resembles the subject during July or August 1971. Based upon his conversation with this individual he strongly suspects the man may be the person connected with this crime.

b7C

[redacted] recalled that he talked to this man for approximately ten to fifteen minutes concerning different aspects of parachute jumping and during this conversation the man asked several unusual questions, such as how would one go about jumping out of jets. [redacted] specifically recalls telling the man it could be done if the door of the aircraft opened inward or if it had a rear stairwell that could be raised and lowered. The man appeared interested and they discussed this further, to the point where air speed and drag was talked about. The fact was brought up that full flaps and lowered landing gear would supply the drag needed to exit from a jet.

b6
b7C

The man also asked [redacted] where jump centers were located in the northwest. [redacted] told him about three locations in the State of Washington, one by the Boeing Air Field in Seattle, one on the Washington side of the Columbia River, just north of Portland, Oregon, and the other center inbetween. The man was apparently interested, but did not right down the names or locations of those centers mentioned by [redacted].

b6
b7C

[redacted] stated it was his opinion that a person contemplating a skyjacking of a commercial aircraft would ask questions such as those purposed. He recalled at the time these questions were asked he thought it was strange as nobody else has ever purposed such questions to him.

b6
b7c

Concerning the individual he talked to sometime during July or August 1971, who [redacted] believes could be identical to the subject that hijacked the Northwest Airlines aircraft on November 24, 1971, he recalled that the man he talked to must have been a smoker of Raleigh Cigarettes because he observed Raleigh coupons in the man's possession and remarked to him that he smoked those cigarettes with the coupons and could save enough to buy a "P. C.", meaning Para-Commander type parachute, the kind used by parachute enthusiasts and most sport jumpers.

b6
b7c

[redacted] advised he recalled this while studying the Government memorandum containing the description of the man who hijacked the aircraft on November 24, 1971. He further advised that he doubted that the man he talked to belonged to any parachute or jumping clubs inasmuch as the average age of jumpers is between 25 to 28 years and they would not hang around with an "old guy like that", and too because most clubs in California have disbanded in the last year and a half.

b7c

Concerning clubs and their locations, [redacted] advised that they could be identified through the U. S. Parachute Association which prints a brochure with the clubs in alphabetical order by states.

Concerning an individual who talked to him at Skylark Field at Elsinor, California who resembles the artist's conception of the hijacker of the Northwest aircraft in Seattle on November 24, 1971, [redacted] stated he has reviewed his thoughts and is certain he can narrow the time span to the middle or late part of August 1971 when this conversation occurred. He still believes it was strange that a person would ask questions about jumping out of jet aircraft and discuss air speed then have something like the hijacking that occurred happen a short time later. He also stated that it may be coincidental but he saw an advertisement on pages 46 and 47 of Look magazine dated August 24, 1971 showing a parachutist jumping out of a jet aircraft. He stated this may have stimulated questions by someone seeing this advertisement, however, he is still concerned since the individual he spoke to resembles the artist's conception of the hijacker. He does not know the name of the man he talked to and has not seen him since. He did state he believes he would recognize the man if he sees him again.

For the information of Seattle, on 12/16/71 [] pointed out that on the flight records from Elsinore all the altitudes of jumps made were from 2,500 to 12,500 feet. He explained that sport jumpers and parachute enthusiasts all jump from altitudes in multiples of 1,000 starting from 2,500, 3,500, 4,500 etc., with the exception of 2,800 which is the competitive height for target jumping. He stated that the 10,000 foot level is reminiscent of Air Force training. He referred to Air Force pamphlet number AFP 160-10-3 entitled "Your Body in Flight" which places 10,000 feet as the maximum altitude considered safe without oxygen. [] surmised that a man with Air Force experience may be the type of person that should be considered a suspect.

b7c

On the other hand, he pointed out that parachutists have different classes of licenses, A, B, C and D class licenses. To hold a D license a jumper must make two night jumps as well as other qualifications. A person with a D license is an experienced jumper.

MB 1. BRJAK

ReBuairtel to AL, 12/7/71.

On 12/20/71, FLOYD WASHBURN, Manager, U.S. Parachute Service, 6976 E. Baseline, Mesa, Arizona, was contacted regarding captioned matter. WASHBURN stated he was familiar with this matter and believed the subject would have had to have been a sporting parachutist and parachute rigger in order to accomplish his feat.

WASHBURN indicated a listing of licensed parachutists is maintained by the U.S. Parachute Association in Monterey, California. The U.S. Parachute Association has supposedly instituted a policy approximately two years ago wherein they have on file photographs of all licensed parachutists. Inquiries made to the U.S. Parachute Association should be directed to [REDACTED] California.

b7C

Although it is noted approximately 40 percent of the nation's parachutists are licensed, this could conceivably be a worthwhile lead for office of origin in this matter.

Phoenix will attempt to conduct appropriate investigation to ascertain the location of the list for licensed parachute riggers.

UNSUB CONSIDERED DANGEROUS.

1. The Director approved publicity of the article and artist's conception in the parachute magazine in response to our teletype 12/7/71.

2. He referred to a teletype of 12/ /71 from Portland in regard to a person who was [redacted]. He said it seemed to him that Portland had set out a lot of unnecessary investigation since the purpose of the thing was simply to get a photo of the suspect and have it shown to witnesses rather than getting all the background.

3. He wanted to know if we had considered having a Northwest plane fly Agents over the exact course at night so that we could look down and see just what the situation was when the "bump" occurred at 8:10 or 8:12 PM. I told him we had considered this and also had considered hiring someone to parachute from the plane but the problem was that there was no way of duplicating the conditions which existed at the time. He requested we put some type of language in a teletype about this.

Re: FLYING SCHOOLS, AIRPORTS AND SKY DIVING CLUBS

On the possibility that subject might have rented a plane and flown over the area of southwest Washington or that he might have chartered a plane for the same purpose, the following investigation should be instituted:

1. Identify and then contact each flying school for anyone who might fit the subject's description as having rented a plane, etc.
2. Identify and then contact all air fields which might have rented such an aircraft to anyone who could answer the subject's description in this case.
3. Identify and contact each sky diving school or club and attempt to determine if the UNSUB might be known to them.

The above investigation should be done on an RA basis with King County being handled by Seattle.

The SRA will coordinate the project for each particular RA.

Found by Family on Outing Part of 'D. B. Cooper' Loot

WASHINGTON—A young Vancouver, Wash., family on an outing along the Columbia River last Sunday suddenly stumbled across 12 stacks of moldering money—part of the $200,000 that the notorious airline hijacker "D. B. Cooper" made off with more than eight years ago, the FBI said Tuesday.

With the bills now having been traced definitely to the Cooper loot, 30 agents from the Portland and Seattle FBI offices have begun an extensive search of the area for more of the money—and possibly for some sign of Cooper or, more likely, his remains.

The money—"several thousand dollars," according to one official—was found in Washington about five miles northwest of the Interstate 5 bridge that spans the Columbia and separates Washington from Oregon, FBI agent William M. Baker told a news conference in Portland.

Discovery of the money by Harold Dwayne Ingram, 27, his wife, Patricia, 26, and their sons, 8 and 3, marked the latest twist in the bizarre saga of the now-legendary Cooper, who parachuted from a Northwest Airlines jetliner on Thanksgiving Eve, 1971, never to be seen or heard from again. When found by the Ingrams, the stacks of $20 bills were bound by decomposing rubber bands, the FBI said. But there was "no trace of D. B. Cooper," according to the agency.

Shortly after the hijacking, a cult sprang up around D. B. Cooper, a name that never has been traced to its origins.

A private club was named in his honor, D. B. Cooper T-shirts were manufactured, bumper stickers were run off and anniversary parties were held.

Baker said in Portland that whether Cooper got away with the rest of the money was an open question.

Law enforcement authorities long have believed that Cooper died in his plunge from the Boeing 727 because he was wearing only a business suit and street shoes when he jumped into a howling wind and freezing rain in an unreliable parachute. It has been estimated that he hit the ground at a speed of 50 to 70 m.p.h.

The saga began when "Cooper" boarded the jetliner in Portland for an evening flight to Seattle. Once airborne, he demanded that the airline have $200,000 in $20 bills and three parachutes on hand when the plane landed in Seattle. He threatened to blow up the plane if his demands were not met.

The airline complied, providing the parachutes and money. However, the FBI said Tuesday that the serial numbers of the bills had been recorded.

Cooper permitted the airliner's 36 passengers to leave the plane in Seattle. He then ordered the crew to take the plane to Reno and told the pilot to fly at a relatively low altitude and to open the plane's rear stairway.

Crew members last heard his voice on the plane's intercom when they were over the Washington-Oregon border. They said they believe he jumped, using the least reliable parachute.

The decomposed money was found 17 to 20 miles from the jump site by the Ingrams' older son, Brian. The bills were partly buried in sand that the Ingrams were scooping out to build a fire.

"Here's some more wood for the fire, Daddy," the father recalled his son as saying.

D.B. and the money

V ANCOUVER, Wash. — William M. Baker, assistant agent in charge of the Portland FBI office, said discovery of the money bills, used eight years ago as part of the $200,000 paid to airline hijacker "D.B. Cooper," have been found on a attempt.

Columbia River beach near here, Cooper's extortion effort was the first time a jet had been hijacked the FBI announced yesterday.

Harold D. Ingram, 27, his wife, Patricia, 26, and their two sons, were picnicking on what is known as Tena's Bar last Sunday when their older son discovered the money.

Eight-year-old Brian Ingram was helping his father gather firewood and had scooped out sand for a fire. As his father was about to drop an armload of wood, young Ingram said, "Wait a minute, Daddy."

Recalling his find yesterday, Brian said, "I seen that money, I thought, wow."

But his parents remained calm. The son recalled, "They thought it was counterfeit."

The tattered and worn bills young Ingram found were the first to be recovered by law enforcement agencies since Nov. 24, 1971, when a passenger hijacked a Northwest Airlines Boeing 727.

The man, identified on the flight list as Dan Cooper, parachuted out of the airliner somewhere over southwestern Washington.

The serial numbers on the bills discovered by young Ingram matched those on the money given Cooper by the FBI in 1971.

Baker said the FBI could not be certain how much money was in the packets, but said it amounted to "several thousand dollars." The money has been sent to the FBI laboratory in Washington, D.C., and Baker hopes the lab will be able to pick fingerprints off the bills, which could lead to the suspect.

"That would be a hell of a break," he said.

Part of D.B. Cooper money found

Sub B; 4; M

Compiled from news services
 WASHINGTON — The Federal Bureau of Investigation has found about $4,000 of the money that the legendary hijacker, D.B. Cooper, carried with him when he parachuted from a commercial jet over Southwest Washington in 1971, a bureau spokesman said Tuesday.

The spokesman, who asked not to be named, said a family wandering along the banks of the Columbia River north of Portland, Ore., found a packet of money this week.

Held together by a rubber band, the packet of $20 bills was so badly deteriorated the F.B.I. could not make an exact count of the amount, the spokesman said.

Despite the deterioration, the spokesman said the F.B.I. was able to identify the money as part of the $200,000 ransom given to Cooper in Seattle nine years ago. When the money was given to the hijacker, the F.B.I. kept records of the serial numbers.

The packet was found 20 miles downstream from the point where Cooper is believed to have bailed out of the Northwest Airlines 727, the spokesman said.

He added that with floods along the river it was likely that in nine years the packet had been carried some distance.

The Portland and Seattle offices of the F.B.I. were conducting a search in the area, but the spokesman said it was unlikely that discovery of the money packet would aid in the search for Cooper, the only parachute-ransom hijacker in United States history who has not been apprehended.

Cooper boarded a Northwest flight in Portland on Thanksgiving Eve, 1971, using the name Dan Cooper. Before the plane reached Seattle, Cooper threatened to explode a "bomb" in his brief case if he were not given $200,000 in $20 bills and four parachutes and flown to Reno, Nev.

The plane circled Seattle for 2½ hours while authorities gathered the parachutes and money.

The passengers and two of the three stewardesses were allowed to leave the plane. The money and parachutes were loaded and the plane took off for Reno. The pilot was ordered to fly as slowly as possible.

Somewhere over Southwest Washington, the hijacker, the money and one of the parachutes disappeared out of the plane's rear exit, opened in flight. The approximate place of departure was guessed at from cabin-pressure readings on the flight recorder.

The flight recorder and crew testimony indicated Cooper had jumped near the little town of Ariel, Cowlitz County, about 30 miles north of Portland, a densely wooded area in the foothills of the Cascade Mountains.

Despite intensive searches of the area, the only item connected with the hijacking ever found was a rear door from the 727.

Nothing ever was seen of Cooper or the $200,000.

The F.B.I. has said since shortly after the hijacking it believed Cooper probably was killed when he landed.

In 1977, just to make sure the hijacker didn't escape prosecution via the statute of limitations, he was indicted on federal charges in absentia.

For information, on 2/20/80, [REDACTED], Vancouver, Washington, phone number [REDACTED], was contacted and she advised that [REDACTED] visited the Tena Bar area in Vancouver, near the location searched by the FBI for ransom money. [REDACTED] happened to find a corner of a $20.00 bill, and she would allow agents of the FBI to examine same.

On 2/20/80, [REDACTED], supra, and [REDACTED], [REDACTED], were contacted at their residence, and [REDACTED] displayed a corner of a $20.00 bill which he found on the Tena Bar. He stated that he found this item sticking out of the sand near the area searched by the FBI. He provided the corner of the $20.00 bill to the writer to determine if in fact it is a portion of the ransom money.

ADMINISTRATIVE

The corner of the $20.00 bill provided by [REDACTED] in no way resembles the sections of money found during the search on Tena Bar. It is the opinion of the writer that this item was placed there as a practical joke. The section of the $20.00 bill provided by [REDACTED] has been placed in a 1A envelope for the file.

On 2/14/80, [REDACTED], Washougal, Washington, telephone [REDACTED], advised on 3/22/77, he found seven $20 bills in the Washougal River below the bowling alley in Washougal, Washington. He stated these bills were in the water and he gave them no thought until the $20 bills were found recently in Vancouver which apparently came from the D. B. Cooper skyjacking. He stated he still had the bills and would provide the serial numbers to the FBI when he returned home.

Later that same day, [REDACTED], supra, provided the serial numbers and series/year of the seven $20 bills mentioned above. The serial numbers and series/years are as follows:

| Serial Number | Series/Year |

A check with the list of known serial numbers and series/year of the D. B. Cooper $20 bills revealed the above serial numbers and series/years did not match those in the list.

Curse of D.B.

Cooper SUBS: B, C, ☐ E, G, MMisfortune Dogs the Family That Found Part of Skyjacker's Money

By Michael Sweeney

Harold Dwayne Ingram, 28, father of the 8-year-old boy who found part of skyjacker D.B. Cooper's ransom money last month, has been arrested in Vancouver, Wash., on a fugitive warrant from Oklahoma.

The warrant charges Ingram with unlawfully removing mortgaged property from the state of Oklahoma — a felony charge that carries a maximum penalty of three years in prison.

Clark County sheriff's deputies arrested Ingram at his rented home in Vancouver Monday afternoon. He was released Tuesday night after a local bail bondsman posted Ingram's $300 bail, sheriff's deputies said.

Kathy Kelly, a legal assistant in the Clark County Prosecuting Attorney's office, said Ingram is scheduled to appear in county district court April 17 for an identification hearing to determine if he is, in fact, the same Harold Ingram sought in Oklahoma.

If he is, Kelly said, Oklahoma authorities will have 60

HAROLD INGRAM:

At least I hope it's not."

days to file extradition papers to force Ingram's return to Oklahoma for trial.

Kelly said court documents filed by authorities in Pittsburg County, Okla., last April charge that Ingram owed $815 then on a used car purchased a month earlier in McAlester, Okla.

The warrant for Ingram's arrest was filed last month, after Pittsburg County District Attorney Don Roberts recognized newspaper photos of Ingram that circulated nationwide in the wake of his family's discovery of a portion of D.B. Cooper's loot.

Cooper parachuted into a freezing rainstorm over Southwest Washington with $200,000 after hijacking a Seattle-bound Northwest Airlines plane Nov. 24, 1971.

Ingram's son, Brian, unearthed several thousand dollars of the ransom money Feb. 10, as he dug a fire pit in the sand along the banks of the Columbia River downstream from Vancouver.

The next day, Ingram turned the money over to the FBI, which announced the find with great fanfare at a press conference featuring the Ingram family.

"Several of us read the paper and recognized him," Roberts told The Associated Press. "We had a warrant sworn out to have him brought back."

Ingram's arrest is the latest in a string of reversals that have followed his family's brief glow in the limelight.

Two weeks after the money was discovered, Ingram's wife, Patricia, reported that her husband was forced to give up 1½ days of pay — about $100 — in order to return the money and attend the FBI's press conference.

"We live from paycheck to paycheck, and we could sure use that $100," she told The Post-Intelligencer at the time.

Mrs. Ingram told The P-I that recovery of the skyjack loot also resulted in family strife that arose when a relative tried to take credit for finding the money.

Late Saturday night, about 35 hours before Ingram was arrested, a fire broke out in an upstairs bedroom of the Ingram home and caused $1,000 damage before Vancouver firefighters could put it out.

Vancouver Fire Marshal Gordon Gage said the blaze was caused by a short in an extension cord.

And as of yesterday, Ingram had missed three days of work this week at the U-Card Concrete Manufacturing Co. in Vancouver.

"We're trying to reach him, because we really want to help him," U-Card owner Joe Tanner said yesterday.

Tanner said his firm intends to advance Ingram the money "to get this thing in Oklahoma squared away."

"We think he's getting a bum rap," Tanner said.

"I'm from Texas, and I've got a little knowledge about these Southern redneck laws that let a D.A. help businessmen collect their debts," he said.

"I've been told he (Ingram) has been making payments on this car loan, and he's only a couple of payments behind," Tanner said.

Worst may be over

By CYNTHIA TANK
Columbian Staff Writer

"I hate to think the thoughts people will be thinking about me all over the United States," said Harold Dwayne Ingram as he sat in his boss's office Thursday afternoon.

The 28-year-old Vancouver resident said he now regrets his 8-year-old son Brian's finding of D.B. Cooper's hijack ransom money last month.

"I regret it for myself, but not for Brian," who, he said, has enjoyed all the attention.

Brian and his family made national headlines after a family outing on a Columbia River beach near Vancouver Feb. 10 turned into a major media and FBI event. Brian was preparing a campfire when he scooped out about $5,000 of the $200,000 Cooper had demanded and received before jumping out of an airliner in 1971.

Since last month Ingram has:

○ Lost 1½ days pay — about $100 — in order to return the money and attend an FBI press conference.

○ Watched as a fire caused about $1,000 damage to the upper floor of his home at 1500 Markle St. Saturday.

○ Been arrested Monday on an Oklahoma warrant alleging he left that state unlawfully with mortgaged property — a car.

Officials in Oklahoma said they recognized Ingram from newspaper photographs that appeared after the famous find. Ingram had been wanted for about six months before the story first appeared in the paper, they said.

The warrant was issued because Ingram allegedly is behind in payments for his car.

"I have every receipt," Ingram said Thursday. "I don't have a payment due on that car until the 20th of next month."

"I feel confused, really confused," Ingram said Thursday. "And I feel pretty unlucky. I'm not angry; I'm kind of hurt. I really care what people think about me."

Ingram said he bought his car from a new car salesman, paid $200 or $300 down, and arranged for financing. He said he notified the finance company when he and his family moved here from Oklahoma last winter.

His arrest Monday was an unhappy surprise, he said.

"I had no idea I had a warrant on me," he said. "That's obvious, or I wouldn't be flashing my face all over the world."

He might have been late with a payment or two, he said, "but rich people do that, too, don't they?"

But things were looking up for Ingram today. His boss and attorney, Joe Tanner, said this morning he has been told by the Pittsburg County, Okla., district attorney that that office now has verification of Ingram's car payments. Ingram, in fact, is paid ahead to July on the car, Tanner said.

Tanner said a few details need to be worked out, but when they are the district attorney has told him the charges will be dropped. That will not occur until Monday, Tanner said he was told. The district attorney was unavailable for comment this morning.

As for Ingram's other bad fortune, just before midnight Saturday, two bedrooms on the upper floor burned, and his landlord — who bailed him out of jail Tuesday — started remodeling the next day.

Tanner, vice president of U-Cart Concrete Systems Inc. of Vancouver, where Ingram is employed, said the company is behind him. Tanner, a lawyer, said he will represent Ingram without charge.

Until the charges against him are dropped, Ingram faces an April 17 identification hearing in Clark County District Court.

"These people are great here," Ingram said of his fellow employees. "They want to back me 100 percent."

"He's been treated unfairly," Tanner said.

TAKE THE MONEY AND JUMP

HOW HE FOILED FBI

DB Cooper-29979

Last November 24th, a man identifying himself as 'D.B. Cooper' parachuted from a Northwest Orient Lines 727 jetliner between Seattle and Reno Nevada with a parcel containing 10,000 twenty dollar bills which was the ransom money that had been delivered to him while he held the planes crew hostage at the Seattle-Tacoma International airport.

The F.B.I. and other state and local law enforcement agents assisted by companies of G.I.'s from Fort Lewis have futilely wasted many hours and thousands of taxpayers dollars looking for Cooper.

So far Cooper has successfully eluded his following in the same ingenious manner that he pulled off his skyjack caper, coolly staying a safe distance away from danger.

The F.B.I. headquarters in Seattle has vowed to scrutinize every foot of land between the Sea-Tac airport and Reno to turn up clues in the case.

Despite rewards of 5,000 dollars by the Media's "Fink on your Friends" program the public has generally granted Cooper adoration and somewhat a hero status. An anonymous interviewer from the twice weekly newspaper the 'Seattle Flag' has produced a story from a taped interview with D.B. Cooper which is validated by the presentation of one of the recorded twenty dollar bills included in the ransom money.

This story was run in the 'Flag' because the interviewer was unable to send it to the 'Post-Intelligencer' because they had the 5,000 dollar reward out for Coopers head also television stations would have requested a tape from which voice prints could possibly be produced. Therefore, running the story in the Flag was the only solution.

Cooper said that the witnesses description were off by about fifteen pounds and a couple of inches. Also that the artist's impression were very poor. When asked why we was still in Washington state he added that he felt it was safer to hide where no one would imagine him to be rather than to go to some place like Mexico or South America where the authorities would naturally expect him to go.

He said he started actual work on his skyjacking plan last June. The idea had come to him while he was it was a calculated risk that's why he jumped in bad weather and at night, also he waited a little longer than usual before pulling his ripcord. Adding that his free fall was about 5,000 of the total 7,000 feet. Which was very risky doing at night.

He came down about a hundred miles away from S.W. Washington contrary to the F.B.I. report that he touched down near Vancouver Washington.

The first thing he did on landing was bury his chute, he was within five miles of where he had intended in an evergreen wooded terrain. He credited this accuracy to his projected calculations and his Japanese watch. He wouldn't say whether he had an accomplice on the ground. He said he had lived in Seattle and had once two parachutes he had ordered. A stewardess came back with the money in a canvas bag to where Cooper was holding another stewardess as hostage in the rear of the passenger cabin.

Cooper checked out the loot, first thing and noticed that they reeked of duplicating fluid. Then the stewardess made two more trips out on to the run way to bring in the chutes.

Then one of the fuel trucks pulled up...then he ordered the passengers off the plane, and everyone else into the cockpit...a middle-aged, executive looking man started to push his way back through the line into the tourist cabin. Cooper tensed up expecting the guy to try something heroic - but he had just left his briefcase on his seat and was retrieving it...

worked at Boeing's on the construction of the first Boeing 727 in 1963 and got to know the 727 from the inside out.

The reason he was attracted to the plan was the alignment of the three Pratt & Whitney engines two on the sides of the rear fuselage and the third at the base of the T-tail assembly. Also the down-flaps stalling speed. One hundred

He figured if the F.B.I. was going to make a move it would be at Sea-Tac. Everybody but the stewardess he was holding hostage and the three man crew was clear of the plane. Buzzing the cockpit he asked the captain what the hold-up was. Trouble with the vapor lock was the answer. And another truck was coming. Cooper told the Captain: "Not more than one fuel truck at a FBI geologist favors Washougal River landing for D.B.

By MYRON STRUCK

States News Service

WASHINGTON — Did D.B. Cooper land in, or near, the Washougal River rather than the Lewis River?

In the personal opinion of the chief FBI geologist who worked on the case, D.B. Cooper may have landed in the Washougal River, not near the Lewis River where it had been presumed that he came to earth — before about $5,800 in compressed, wet and eroded money was found along the banks of the Columbia River in February upstream from the Lewis.

The Washougal River scenario is the private view of geologist Chris Fiedler, who handled the soil analysis on the money, and not part of the agency's official report to the Seattle field office coordinating the investigation.

Still, it seems to be the only clue — that might help the investigation the FBI was able to glean from a recent analysis of the bills in its Washington, D.C., research area known as The Laboratory.

The official report says little was found on the wad of money. The basis for the new information is Fiedler's research of the sand particles found among the bills and his discussions with federal geologists in the field.

He has concluded that the range of sand particles found among the bills is similar to sediment along the Columbia River and a number of its tributaries.

Fiedler's opinion has been disavowed firmly by his mineralogy division section chief.

"He could have landed in the Columbia River," Fiedler said. "Or he could have come down in the Washougal. The latter is where my training, and instincts, tell me is more likely, based on the data I have available."

The sand tests involve little in the way of complicated equipment — only a simple microscope and some geological reference material that discusses the characteristics of sand

On February 20, 1980, [redacted]
[redacted], U. S. Army Corps of Engineers, Portland District, telephone [redacted], was contacted regarding the possibility that bait money found near the [redacted] on February 10, 1980, could have been brought to that area by a river feeding the Columbia River from the north.

The area believed to be the drop zone of the subject in 1971, is described as that area in the State of Washington bounded on the north by the Lewis River, the east by the Clark County-Skamania County line, and the Columbia River.

[redacted] advised the only likely river feeding the Columbia River within the above described drop zone that would be capable of moving several bundles of money or a package about 16x16x4 inches to the Columbia River would be the Washougal River. A logical time, if the money came down the Washougal, would have been during the December 2, 1977 ten feet over the normal winter flood stage.

There are several other streams that feed the Columbia River upstream from the [redacted]; however, due to size, or the degree of slope of the streams, it is unlikely that a small package would have made it to the Columbia. It is also unlikely that a small package would have passed through Lacamas Lake downstream to the Columbia.

[redacted] stated that based on the three feet per second speed of the Columbia River, if a small package entered the Columbia

The following investigation was conducted by SAs
[redacted] on February 13, 1980:

AT PORTLAND, OREGON

[redacted], Waterways Maintenance Branch, Navigation Division, U.S. Army Engineer District, 319 S.W. Pine, telephone [redacted], was contacted regarding dredging operations on the Columbia River since November 24, 1971. The purpose of obtaining this information was to determine if it was possible that the bait money located on the beach property on the [redacted] Vancouver, Washington, on February 10, 1980, could have been placed there through dredging operations on the Columbia River.

[redacted], after a review of his records, advised that the only dredging operation between November 24, 1971, and the present in the vicinity of the [redacted] was during August 6 through September 18, 1974.

Material dredged from the river channel in the Columbia River was placed in several locations on or near the [redacted] as well as one location across the river on the Oregon side.

The dredge material deposited at the site where the money was located came from the north half of the ship channel, which is 300 feet wide, between river mile 96 plus 38 feet and river mile 97 plus 17 feet. This material was deposited on the beach area of the [redacted] between August 19 through the 25th, 1974, and consisted of 91,100 cubic yards of fill.

The channel is maintained at 40 feet in depth and all the material above 40 feet is dredged out. The dredge "Washington" of the General Construction Company did the dredging on this project. It had a 24 inch pipe with wiper bar inside the pipe. The wiper bar keeps large objects such as rocks from passing through the pipe. [redacted] stated it would be possible for a 16x16x4 inch package to get through the pipe; however, it is likely that a package that size or a human body or parts thereof would [redacted] advised that he found the beach area in the vicinity where the money was found to be in approximately four different layers. These layers consisted of an upper sand layer, a post dredging sand layer, a clay lump (dredge) sand layer, and below that an older sand layer. The upper layer consisted of six inches to eight inches of reworked beach sand and is the sand which contained the fragments and bundles of the recovered money. This sand also contained soda pop cans and other debris, which were not severely damaged or rusted. The post dredging sand contained older soda pop cans, rusted nails and spikes, and other rusted artifacts, which were in a much more deteriorated condition. The clay lump (dredge) sand was a mixture of coarse sand and fragments of organic clay material, ranging from one inch to five inches in size. Based on U.S. Corps of Engineering records which reflect that they dredged the Columbia River at this site in 1974, [redacted] stated this clay layer in all probability, was deposited during that 1974 dredging. The older sands, which were light in color and uniform in texture and which were found below the clay lump sand, were deposited prior to the 1974 dredging.

b7c

[redacted] advised that in the post dredging layer, he found cross bedded coarse and medium sand, which indicated the river and river waves had worked repeatedly on this layer since 1974. The upper six inches to eight inches of reworked beach sand is the active layer which is currently being worked by the water of the Columbia River.

b6
b7c

Based on the condition of the money through observation, [redacted] advised that the money was probably washed into the location where it was found by natural river flow and was probably placed at the location of Tena Bar during the last rise in the Columbia River in the past two or three months.

Discovered 'Cooper' bills only $5,800, says F.B.I.

VANCOUVER, Wash. — (AP) — The crumbling remains of $20 bills unearthed by a Vancouver family more than two weeks ago represents about $5,800 of the $200,000 taken in the 1971 D.B. Cooper skyjacking, the Federal Bureau of Investigation says.

Ray Mathis, senior agent, said officials counted the decaying greenbacks during F.B.I. laboratory tests in Washington, D.C.

Otis Cox of the bureau's Washington, D.C., office said little else has been revealed about the money. Lab technicians continue to study the loot, particularly for evidence of where it might have been before it washed up on the banks of the Columbia River, Otis said.

The lumpy wads of money were found buried in shallow sand west of here.

The fate of Cooper, America's first skyjacker-for-money, has never been learned, although the F.B.I. maintains he is probably long dead.

Agent in D.B. Cooper

case retires

PORTLAND — For more than eight years, Ralph Himmelsbach, an agent with the Federal Bureau of Investigation, followed a narrow trail of clues and tips in his quest of a legendary hijacker called D.B. Cooper. But the first real break in the case didn't come until Himmelsbach's F.B.I. career was drawing to a close.

After 29 years with the bureau, Himmelsbach retired as of Friday, a few months before he reaches the mandatory-retirement age of 55.

Himmelsbach was the agent regarded as the bureau's expert on the puzzling case that started when the still-unknown sky pirate leaped from a Northwest Airlines 727 with 10,000 $20 bills and two parachutes on Thanksgiving Eve, 1971.

Nothing has been heard of Cooper; and nothing was seen of the money until an 8-year-old boy found about $5,800 of it mixed in the sand along the Columbia River near Vancouver, Wash., February 10.

"It's been an interesting case and I have enjoyed the investigation because of the things that have happened," Himmelsbach said. "It altered my life because of all the attention I have received."

But, he added, "I think I'll walk away from it and it will never bother me."

No money, no fish

Treasure hunters fail to find more Cooper loot

VANCOUVER, Wash. (AP) — When the fellas gather at Tena Bar, fish stories abound. Hardly anyone wants to talk about the D.B. Cooper money that got away.

Tena Bar isn't a local watering hole. It's a local fishing hole — and the sand bar on the Columbia River on which the D.B. Cooper loot was found recently.

For awhile, all sorts of people gathered at the bar to search for some of the $200,000 ransom money taken by Cooper in the nation's first hijacking-for-profit nine years ago, after a boy found weathered packets of $20 bills in the sand.

On Wednesday, however, the only evidence of last week's frantic search of the beach by FBI agents were mounds of sand turned up by the searchers.

"We haven't seen anybody," said Bill Holcomb, a Vancouver resident and frequenter of Tena Bar.

Holcomb was fishing there with Virgil Nichols and Ken Troupe, both of Vancouver. The trio made up the entire fishing population of Tena Bar on Wednesday.

"We drag junk out of this river every day. Plastic, old shoes, things like that," said Nichols. "But never any money."

"There may be money here, but there's no fish," Holcomb said.

A long trench on the beach dug for use by river experts studying the layers of sand has been refilled, as has the large hole around the spot where a 3-year-old Brian Ingram found the Cooper money. Cooper hijacked a Northwest Airlines plane in 1971 and jumped from the back of the jet with $200,000.

The Fazio Brothers, who own the beach next to their farming operation, seem glad it's over.

"As soon as the FBI left Friday," said Richard Fazio, "Two people came, got stuck in the sand, and wanted me to pull them out. I did, and then I went up to close the gate."

Meanwhile, local FBI agents assigned to the case are awaiting the results of tests of the money by the bureau's crime lab in Washington, D.C., and checking all the leads that invariably crop up when anything to do with the Cooper case is publicized.

"Every time you have anything on the Cooper case that gets any publicity, the fallout is a great number of leads — look-a-like leads."

FBI agents wield rakes, shovels in 'treasure hunt'

Story on Page One also

By LESLIE L. ZAITZ
of The Oregonian staff

VANCOUVER, Wash. — Guernsey cattle and puzzled fishermen watched with curiosity Tuesday as 20 casually attired FBI agents combed the Columbia River shoreline near here, looking for more of a hijacker's treasure.

The agents, working with garden rakes and shovels, carefully sifted through the sand on what is known locally as Tena's Bar, a sloping beach about nine miles northwest of Vancouver. The beach is owned by New Columbia Gardens Co., which operates a truck and dairy farm behind the beach.

What attracted the searchers was the find Sunday afternoon of a dozen bundles of worn $20 bills, part of the ransom paid more than eight years ago to the legendary "Dan Cooper." A man using that name hijacked a Northwest Airlines jetliner in November 1971 and parachuted out of the aircraft with 21 pounds of cash totaling $200,000.

The bundles on the beach were found by 8-year-old Brian Ingram, who was helping his parents, Harold Dwayne and Patricia Ingram, build a fire for a picnic. The family, which moved to Vancouver recently from Oklahoma, had never heard of the man who was widely known at the time of his crime as D.B. Cooper.

Dorwyn Schreuder, the FBI agent supervising the beach search, said the Ingrams put the money aside after discovering it and continued with their picnic. They reported their discovery to the FBI on Monday.

The site, a popular fishing spot for Vancouver residents, was guarded by agents Monday night and the search started about noon Tuesday.

Agents roped off a section of beach measuring roughly 150 yards long and 30 yards wide. All driftwood was removed, and then began the laborious task of raking through sand at least 6 inches deep.

The Ingrams' find had been about 6 inches beneath the surface, Schreuder said. FBI agents Tuesday afternoon found fragments of at least two other $20 bills. By late Tuesday, several more fragments had been found as deep as 31 feet below the surface.

"We'll be taking some heavy equipment, probably backhoes, in there Wednesday to dig deeper," said Bill Baker, assistant special agent in charge of the Portland FBI office.

Schreuder and other agents at the site said they still supported the long-held FBI theory that Cooper died in his parachuting attempt.

"He's probably not alive today," Schreuder said. "If he were, I think he'd be with his money."

The FBI initially was cautious about disclosing the precise location of the discovery. Operators of the farm said they knew something was unusual when several cars streamed along a road leading through the farmyard to the beach.

"We didn't know what it was about until we heard it on the radio," said one farm employee.

And three fishermen who routinely spend every day but Sundays fishing on the beach initially were confused and then angry.

"These guys wouldn't tell us what was going on," said Ken Davenport of Vancouver. "They asked us to move, but wouldn't tell us who they were or why."

Another fisherman, Mike Haddican of Vancouver, said they knew something was up "because everybody was getting out of cars with shovels instead of fishing poles."

The Guernsey cows watched the beach show from their pens on a small bluff, scattering occasionally when helicopters chartered by news organizations flew overhead.

Within an hour after the FBI announced where the money had been found, private automobiles streamed down Northwest Lower River Road, a narrow two-lane road leading to the farm. A Clark County sheriff's deputy guarded the entrance, preventing the public from getting to the beach.

FBI agents were to remain on the scene overnight to keep out would-be treasure hunters.

The FBI said how much of the beach would be searched would be determined after the agency consulted with hydrologists and others who could provide expert advice about from where the money may have come.

Only half-joking, Schreuder said the agents "could search all the beach from here to Astoria."

FBI calls off search for more hijack money

The FBI has, at least temporarily, called off its search along the Columbia River for more of the money obtained eight years ago by the airplane hijacker who used the name Dan Cooper.

Jack Pringle, assistant special agent in charge of the FBI's Seattle office, said, the search was called off late Thursday night after several days of sand-sifting produced no new evidence. The Seattle office has coordinated search efforts in the Cooper caper, the only unresolved hijacking on record since it occurred in 1971.

Pringle said search efforts might be renewed next week, after the results of laboratory tests are received on the several thousand dollars in badly decayed $20 bill fragments found by a picnicking family Sunday about nine miles downstream from Vancouver.

He said there was a chance the tests "could find additional debris that might give us an idea where (the money) may have been" before it washed onto the river bank.

A geologist serving as consultant to the FBI has said he believes the money had spent most of the past eight years underwater and was deposited on the sandy beach only within the past year.

The Northwest Airlines plane was hijacked between Portland and Seattle by a man who said he had a bomb. The hijacker obtained $200,000 in $20 bills when the plane landed in Seattle and then parachuted with the money over Southwest Washington.

The bills found Sunday represented the first trace of the hijacker or money since the Thanksgiving Eve hijack occurred.

Finder of Cooper loot gets frayed $20 bill

VANCOUVER, Wash. — Eight-year-old Brian Ingram, who found bundles of $20 bills last week but had to turn them over to authorities, has been given one by the FBI.

The boy jumped into the national spotlight Feb. 10 when he discovered several thousand dollars of the $200,000 ransom paid to skyjacker Dan Cooper in 1971. The money, frayed around the edges, was identified by FBI agents who have been looking for Cooper since he jumped from a Northwest Orient Airlines plane over Southwest Washington.

The $20 was given to the boy by Mike Heywood, Hough Elementary School PTA president. Accompanying the bill was a certificate praising the boy for his find.

Since finding the money, Brian and his parents, H. Dwayne and Patricia, have been the subject of network television newscasts and newspaper articles. Saturday night, the three were satirized on the "Weekend Update" segment of the weekly television show "Saturday Night Live."

Geologist's finding contradicts theory

By Bud May
The Daily News

A thorough search of a Columbia River beach where part of D.B. Cooper's ransom money was found Sunday has turned up no new clues as to the fate of the legendary skyjacker.

The FBI said today that the search will continue today and Friday, then probably be suspended temporarily.

Brought to the beach to aid in Wednesday's search were a backhoe and a geologist.

The FBI said the backhoe was used to dig a trench near the discovery site, making possible a study of the layers to sand.

An associate professor of geology at Portland State University, Leonard Palmer, was retained to inspect the sand and to assist investigators in determining when the bundled money may have been deposited there.

Palmer, to the surprise of some authorities, concluded that the money was deposited on the beach in the past year or two because it was above clay deposits put on the beach in a 1974 channel dredging operation.

According to the FBI, a coarse layer of sand sloped from a height of about six inches at the river's edge to two feet or more some distance up the river bank.

Earlier, Ralph Himmelsbach, a Portland FBI agent who has had charge of following new leads in the Cooper case for a number of years, said he believed the money must have been deposited within a couple of years after the skyjacking.

He says discovery of the money provided a major break in the case, but puts authorities no closer to locating Cooper, whom Himmelsbach believes is dead.

Agents say the money was tied to Cooper when he bailed out of the plane, but was no longer with him when it was deposited on the beach.

If it had still been attached to his body at the bottom of the river when the channel was dredged in 1974, the body would have clogged up the dredge and have been found, agents believe.

Jack Pringle, assistant agent in charge of the Seattle FBI Office, told The Daily News this morning that small bits and pieces of $20 bills were located Wednesday when agents continued digging in sand surrounding the spot where a Vancouver family discovered money Sunday.

The Harold Dwayne Ingram family was on an outing north and west of Vancouver when their 8-year-old son, Brian, uncovered several thousand dollars in decomposed bills.

Ingram contacted the Portland FBI Office, and a check of serial numbers conclusively established that the money was part of $200,000 in $20 bills Cooper had when he bailed out of a Northwest Orient Airlines jet over the Lewis River area on Nov. 24, 1971.

Pringle said the area was still being searched today, but no new evidence had been located as of this forenoon.

"Some of the area is inaccessible, and there's no way we can search the whole area," Pringle said in Seattle this morning.

This catch wasn't the big one

Fishing for D.B.Cooper's loot

By PAT MOSER

Columbian Staff Writer

WASHOUGAL — Bob Devaney watched the ducks peck away at something floating in the Washougal River near the Riverside Bowl.

It was March 22, 1977, and Devaney of 4221 F Circle, Washougal, was fishing for steelhead. The muddy runoff waters had cleared, and the river was in shape for catching the ocean-going trout.

"I watched the ducks nibbling away," Devaney said. "I waded out to see. That's when I saw the money. At first, I thought it was play money."

But Devaney picked up a bill and examined it. It was a real $20 bill, and there were six others to be grabbed from atop the water.

Devaney's story became more significant last week when part of the D.B. Cooper hijacking money was found washed up on a Columbia River beach nine miles downstream from Vancouver. One theory contends the money could have washed out of the Washougal River watershed during the nearly 8½ years since Cooper parachuted from an airliner over Southwest Washington.

A check with the Federal Bureau of Investigation list of serial numbers on the $200,000 given Cooper didn't match those found by Devaney. Devaney still has his $140 tucked away in cellophane bags.

The D.B. Cooper money find also brought significance to a green bank bag found by Jack Smith who lives up the Washougal River in Skamania County.

Smith was driving down the river

'Cooper expert' to close out career

The finding of some of the "Dana Cooper" hijacking money Sunday came as a dramatic climax to the career of Sean Ralph Himmelsbach, the FBI's Cooper expert.

Himmelsbach, himself a veteran pilot, has lived, breathed and slept the Dan Cooper case ever since a man using that name hijacked a Northwest Airlines jet from Portland on Thanksgiving Eve, 1971.

Himmelsbach, who has logged thousands of hours of flying time in his own 1952 model single-engine Beechcraft Bonanza, was aloft in an Oregon Air National Guard helicopter ready to intercept the hijacked plane within a few minutes after the airliner took off from Seattle, where Cooper obtained $200,000 and four parachutes. But the air turbulence that night was so severe that the helicopter was ordered back to Portland Airbase.

Next morning Himmelsbach started the first of a series of flights which took him the length of the hijack route many times, between investigating other clues, all of which proved to be false.

"I was over the target area near Lake Merwin Sunday again," he said.

Tuesday. "I saw they had logged a lot of prime search area, and thought something would turn up now."

But he never guessed the news that would confront him when he reported for work Monday.

"I'll admit to a certain sense of satisfaction," Himmelsbach said Tuesday, flashing a broad smile. "The case isn't solved, but this is certainly a major milestone."

Himmelsbach will retire March 1, after 27 years with the FBI — climaxed by his work on the Cooper case, one that will go down in FBI history.

Bills 1st solid clue in hijack mystery

By LEVERETT RICHARDS
of The Oregonian staff

The weathered bundles of $20 bills found on the Washington bank of the Columbia River nine miles northwest of Vancouver on Sunday were the first solid clues to the mystery of the "Dan Cooper" aircraft hijacking, FBI agents said Tuesday.

One of the more intensive searches in the FBI's history had failed to turn up any clue to the fate of the mysterious hijacker or his loot during the eight years since he bailed out of a Northwest Orient Airlines Boeing 727 flying at 7,000 feet over La Center, Wash., on Nov. 24, 1971, FBI spokesmen said.

Cooper's was the first hijacking of a commercial airliner for money, and started a chain of similar attempts, which was responsible in part for the rigid security system now enforced at all United States airports and most major airports abroad.

Because of an erroneous report of the name used by the hijacker, he became known nationally as D.B. Cooper, although the airline manifest showed he had used the name "Dan."

The man who called himself Cooper paid cash for a ticket and boarded Northwest's Flight 305 at Portland International Airport just before it departed. He sat in a rear seat in the cabin and waited until the plane was airborne. Then he handed stewardess Florence Schaffner a note saying he had a bomb in the satchel he was carrying and demanding $200,000 in unmarked $20 bills.

By the time the plane landed at Seattle-Tacoma International Airport at 5:45 p.m., airline officials were gathering the money and the four parachutes he had demanded. The hijacker released the 36 passengers on board, along with all crew members except one stewardess and two pilots. The plane then took off and headed south at 7,000 feet in stormy weather.

At 8:10 p.m. the pilots felt a fluctuation in cabin pressure which indicated the rear door had been opened. Later tests showed this was when the hijacker had bailed out, taking with him the money and the device that he claimed was a bomb.

Computer calculations and a later reconstruction of the flight persuaded the FBI that Cooper had bailed out near Woodland, Wash., and would have landed somewhere west of Lake Merwin.

William Rataczak, first officer (co-pilot) on the hijacked plane who flew the later reconstructions of the hijack flight, said the pilots received no answer when they called on the interphone to their passenger and were not certain he was gone until they landed in Reno, Nev., at 11 p.m.

The "target area" was searched repeatedly by the FBI, other law enforcement officers and soldiers from Fort Lewis, Wash., but no trace of man or money was found. Northwest Airlines offered a reward, since expired, and hunters and woodsmen continued the search for years without success.

Before Sunday, the only item that had been found from the hijacking was a placard believed to have blown off the bulkhead of the 727 when the door was opened in flight.

It was found 13 miles east of Castle Rock, Wash., in January 1979. The placard, if indeed it came from the hijacked plane, "helped to confirm that the plane was on course all the way, but didn't shed any light on what happened to Cooper," said FBI agent Ralph Himmelsbach, who headed the investigation.

After eight years of investigation, Himmelsbach has said he still believes Cooper could not have survived the parachute jump at 7 degrees below zero, dressed as he was in a light business suit and street shoes.

Part of Cooper cash uncovered

By LEVERETT RICHARDS
of The Oregonian

"Several thousand dollars" of the $200,000 obtained eight years ago by the celebrated airline hijacker who used the name Dan Cooper was found Sunday along the Columbia River downstream from Vancouver, Wash., the FBI reported Tuesday.

Three bundles containing 12 packets of weatherbeaten $20 bills were found in river sand by a picnicking Vancouver family, about nine miles northwest of the city.

FBI agents searching the beach Tuesday afternoon found several more fragments of $20 bills, some of them under three feet of sand.

Harold Dwayne Ingram, his wife, Patricia, and their son, Brian, 8, were preparing to build a fire on the beach when Brian brushed the sand aside and turned up some of the bills, Ingram said.

"We dug around and found three bundles of bills tied with rubber bands," Ingram said.

The bills were wet and badly worn, but the serial numbers were legible. The FBI identified the serial numbers and confirmed that they were part of the loot given Cooper when he hijacked a Northwest Orient Airlines Boeing 727 jetliner between Portland and Seattle on Nov. 24, 1971.

William M. Baker, assistant special agent in charge of the Portland FBI office, said the Ingrams were relatively new to the Vancouver area, moving there recently from Oklahoma. They had never heard of Cooper, Baker said.

"They took it (the money) home and were talking to some friends about it," Baker said. "The friends pointed out that it might be the money from the Cooper thing. That's when they called the FBI."

Ralph Himmelsbach, the FBI agent in charge of the case since the hijacking, said it was the first solid clue to the Cooper mystery since the hijacker bailed out near La Center, Wash., into a winter storm at 8:10 p.m. that Thanksgiving Eve. The first hijacking for money, the Cooper case became a national sensation.

Baker said it was possible the FBI laboratory in Washington, D.C., could discern fingerprints on the money.

"That would be a hell of a break," he said.

Baker said the money the Ingrams found had not been counted. At first the amount recovered was estimated at about $4,000, but "we have revised our estimate to several thousand dollars," he said.

Baker said the money was bundled into packages of several sizes at the time of the hijacking, "to make it appear that it was randomly done, as if it was done in a hurry." Because of that, the actual amount could not be estimated, he said.

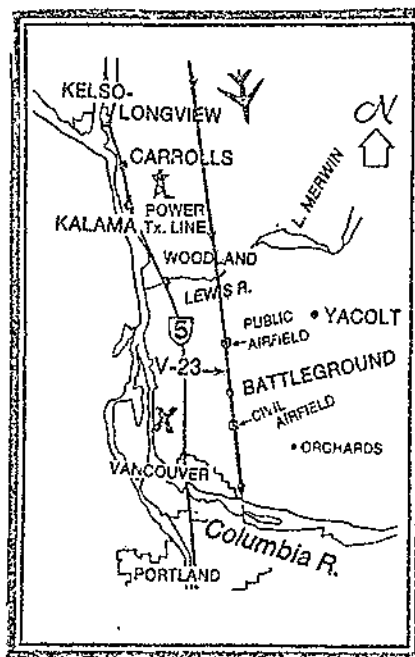

FBI agents Tuesday were carefully combing the site of the Sunday discovery for further clues. The beach, open to the public, is owned by the New Columbia Gardens Co., a truck and dairy farm.

Cooper was seen on the plane tying a nylon cord around his waist, presumably to tie the money into a parachute bag. The Ingrams said they did not see any sign of a cloth bag, but Himmelsbach said it would be hard to understand how the bundles of bills could have stayed together all these years if they were not in some kind of container.

Baker said the search for Cooper's remains or other clues would be resumed in a new area.

FBI spokesmen concluded that the bills could have been washed down some tributary of the Columbia.

George Holmes, a U.S. Army Corps of Engineers hydrologist, said he would review information about where Cooper

Dan Cooper bill not given to boy

Brian Ingram, the 8-year-old Vancouver, Wash., boy who discovered some of the Dan Cooper skyjacking ransom last week, was not given one of the deteriorated bills, as was reported Tuesday in some editions of The Oregonian.

The boy actually was given a $20 bill made to look like one of the tattered bills, in addition to a certificate praising him for his find. Both items came from the Hough Elementary School PTA.

Meanwhile in Washington, D.C., FBI laboratory technicians have been unable to determine how much money was in the three bundles of Cooper's recovered as a result of young Ingram's find.

"The $20 bills were so badly deteriorated that we have been unable to count it," said FBI spokesman Otis Cox. He said no fingerprints were found on the bills.

The bills were identified as part of Cooper's $200,000 by their serial numbers.

Dear Mr. Baker:

We have become aware that some of the money given to D. B. Cooper has been recovered. This letter is to advise you that our client, Globe Indemnity Company, reimbursed Northwest Airlines for the money which was given to D. B. Cooper. It is our opinion, based on the terms of the contract pursuant to which such indemnification was made, that Globe Indemnity is entitled to receive any recovery made until the full amount of indemnification has been repaid.

We would appreciate being kept advised of what recovery is or has been made.

Very truly yours,

The Loot Reveals New Clues to the Fate of D.B.

By John O'Ryan

VANCOUVER, Wash. — Eight FBI agents digging on a Columbia River beach in a snowstorm found no more of D.B. Cooper's hijack ransom yesterday, but they revealed new clues to the fate of the legendary parachutist.

Special agent Ken Moore of Seattle, in charge of the digging, said a geologist's report indicates that the money which has been found drifted up on this beach within the past two years.

Furthermore, Moore said as he warmed himself by a campfire during a respite from the frigid digging, the money came downstream, and probably reached the Columbia from the Washougal River, or one of several smaller streams which enter the big river above here.

It isn't likely, he said, that the money came upstream, with tidal currents, from the Lewis River — which drains Lake Merwin, where Cooper has long been thought to have perished.

Moore thought for a few moments, then said:

"Tourists who want to look for more Cooper money probably should look on the Washougal River."

All of which indicates that Cooper, with $200,000 in a canvas suitcase strapped to his body, jumped from a Northwest Airlines Boeing 727 a little southeast of the point originally estimated by the FBI.

He apparently landed southeast of Lake Merwin which is just off I-5 near Woodland, in the drainage of the Washougal River, or nearby streams, in hilly, wooded country.

"There is nothing infallible about our original estimate of where he landed," said John Pringle, assistant special agent in charge of the Seattle office.

"Because of strong wind currents, and other variables, we could have been a little off in our original estimates."

According to Pringle, only one money bundle from the $200,000 hijack ransom was found on this beach nine miles downstream from the bridge over the Columbia River at Vancouver.

But since Cooper had all of his money in one canvas container, according to Moore, if any of the money is scattered — all of it is likely to be scattered.

Cooper, whose real identity has never been learned, literally dropped out of sight the night he plunged from the airliner. He had collected his hijack loot in Seattle — bundles of money wrapped in a package six inches high, one foot across, and about 18 inches long — later stuffed into a bag tied to his waist.

No trace was found of Cooper or his money until a family picnicking on this north bank of the Columbia, on property owned by the Fazio Brothers Sand Co. and dairy cow farm, found tattered bills three to six inches deep in the sand.

It was "Seattle day" at the FBI diggings on the Columbia River yesterday. The previous day, 10 FBI agents from the Portland bureau carried out the digging.

Yesterday, eight agents from the Seattle bureau were hard at work. The beach is roped off, and a Clark County sheriff's car was parked at the entrance to the Fazio property to keep the public out.

Sand was piled around the original money discovery area, because the FBI had been using a backhoe to excavate there. Agents were working yesterday with shovels and rakes.

Moore said a Portland State University Geologist is the one who determined that the money had floated onto the beach within the last two years.

This, Moore said, was based on a determination that there is only about six to eight inches of sand on this beach, and beneath it is a clay that was placed here by a channel dredging project carried out in 1974.

The clay, he said, appears "undisturbed," but the sand contains soft-drink containers and other debris from picnickers. It appears to be of recent origin, and the money was found only about three to six inches deep in it.

Moore said the Army Corps of Engineers had scuttled the theory that the money had drifted upstream with tidal currents from the mouth of the Lewis River, which enters the Columbia downstream from here.

"I talked to the engineers, and they said that it is most unlikely that anything drifted upstream against the current," Moore said.

If no more money is found, the FBI's digging on the beach will end today, Moore said.

But he expressed the belief that the departure of the FBI will not end the sifting through this strip of sand.

"After we leave, probably 2,500 people will digging here the next day," he said.

FBI agents digging in search of more cluesBy Bud May
The Daily News

PORTLAND — An 8-year-old boy accomplished with a sweep of his hand Sunday something the FBI has been trying to do for more than eight years.

Brian Ingram, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Dwayne Ingram of Vancouver, provided the first major breakthrough in the D.B. Cooper skyjacking case when he accidentally uncovered part of the $200,000 ransom Cooper had when he bailed out of a Northwest Airlines jet in the Lewis River area on Thanksgiving Eve, Nov. 24, 1971.

The FBI said Tuesday the discovery of more than $3,000 in badly deteriorated $20 bills was made Sunday while the Ingram family was on an outing on a Columbia River beach about five miles northwest of Vancouver on the Washington side.

Meantime, the FBI is conducting an intensive grid search of the beach area where the money was found. Agents reported finding bits and pieces of money Tuesday afternoon, some of it as deep as three feet in sand.

However, the pieces were so small, it was not possible to determine the amount of money.

A U.S. Army Corps of Engineers hydrologist, George Holmes, said he would review information about where the hijacker jumped in relation to where the money was found.

He said the Washougal River was the only Columbia tributary that might have carried the cash, and even that is a remote possibility.

Not everyone shares that opinion.

Some experts feel that because of the Columbia's currents, the money could have come from the Lewis River and washed upstream.

The FBI has also contacted the Army Engineers, which continuously dredges sand in that area, on the chance that dredging brought the money up from the bottom of the river. A spokesman for the Army Engineers said today that it is a definite possibility. While they constantly dredge in that area, the last time they deposited the dredged sand on that beach was in October 1974.

Agents said the money, in bundles, without question is part of that given the man known as Cooper.

"The packaging and numbered sequence indicate the bills have not been separated and are in much the same order as when given to the hijacker," explained Bill Baker, assistant agent in charge at the Portland office.

Baker could not say whether the Ingram family will get a reward, since the FBI can not offer one, but he indicated there is a good possibility that the airline or another source, would provide one.

The elder Ingram and his wife, Patricia, told dozens of news media people at a press conference in the Portland FBI Office Tuesday how the money was found.

"I was about to build a fire on the beach," said Ingram, "and had my arms full, but before I could set it down, my son said, 'Wait a minute daddy.' He scooped off some sand, and this money rolled to the top."

A UPI reporter who talked with the family Tuesday said Brian and his 5-year-old cousin, Denise Ingram, shouted, "Look! It's money that we found!"

The Ingrams said they didn't connect the money to the Cooper case at the time, but realized it must be important to someone, so they notified the Portland FBI Office of the find.

Asked by a reporter why he contacted the FBI instead of local authorities, Ingram responded, "Because I figured if I turned it over to police, I would never see it again."

He didn't elaborate on that remark, but continued to answer questions from newspaper, television and radio reporters.

Asked if he considered keeping the money, Ingram laughingly replied, "No, it looked in such bad shape I didn't think I could spend it."

Ingram said the money, which was displayed for reporters on a table at the press conference, was about 20 yards from the edge of the river, but was very wet.

Because of the poor condition of the bills, the exact amount of recovered money is unknown, pending laboratory examination, the FBI said.

While FBI agents seem ecstatic about the discovery, they are quick to point out that approximately $197,000 is still missing, and what happened to Cooper himself is just as much a mystery as before the find.

Cooper in lake, ex-agent says

By Bud May
The Daily News

The body of skyjacker D.B. Cooper lies on the bottom of Lake Merwin, most likely hung up on a snag.

Retired FBI Agent Tom Manning of Longview has held that theory for several years, and still does.

The fact that some of the ransom money Cooper got from Northwest Airlines was found Sunday on a Columbia River beach north and west of Vancouver has not changed his conviction in the least.

Manning, now manager of the Longview Chamber of Commerce, had charge of the massive searches conducted in the Lewis River area after the infamous skyjacking of a Northwest Airlines jet on Thanksgiving Eve in 1971.

Because he worked so long on a case that has never been solved, the former resident agent has taken a lot of ribbing from friends and acquaintances.

"Some still call me D.B. Cooper," he said with a chuckle Tuesday night.

Manning never believed the skyjacker survived the jump with $200,000 in ransom money, and was among the first to say so.

"I said several years ago that I think he may be hung up on a snag at the bottom of Lake Merwin, and I still think so," Manning said after learning Tuesday that some of the ransom money had been found.

Manning said the fact that the money was found upstream, rather than downstream from the mouth of the Lewis River, doesn't disprove his theory.

He said it could have been moved upstream by tides and currents.

George Holmes, a hydrologist for the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, says that would not have been impossible, but he considers it unlikely that currents would have moved the cash that far upstream.

"However," Holmes, emphasized, "I'm not taking issue in any way with the theory of where the hijacker may have come down after leaving the plane, or where the rest of the money might be."

Manning recalls vividly the intensive search conducted east of Woodland in the Lewis River area.

He says Charles Farrell of Seattle was the FBI agent in charge of the case, while Manning coordinated the searches. Other agents from the Seattle and Portland FBI offices were also involved. In addition, about 200 soldiers from Fort Lewis were used in an inch by inch grid search conducted in March of 1972 after the winter snows melted.

Despite the fact that no trace of Cooper was found, Manning and other agents remained convinced he had jumped somewhere in the Lewis River-Lake Merwin area, where crewmen of the Boeing 727 noted a fluctuation in the cabin rate of pressure indicator about 8:10 p.m.

Minutes earlier lights came on in the cockpit indicating the rear airstair of the aircraft had been lowered.

"Using the same aircraft, we made some tests three days after the hijacking, and the results gave credence to the theory that he jumped in the area the crew told us about," Manning said.

Manning was aboard the plane, flown by the chief pilot of the airline, when it was taken over the Pacific Ocean off the Hoquiam bombing range for the tests. Also present was the same flight engineer who was on duty the night of the incident.

"We took along some wooden sleds with sandbags to approximate the weight of Cooper, the parachutes given him and the ransom money, and dropped them from the plane when the flying conditions were the same as they were at the time he bailed out," Manning recalled.

The airstair was lowered, and the sleds dropped.

"The engineer said the plane reacted the same as it had before when the weight was released," Manning said Tuesday.

According to Manning, the FBI and the airline were convinced then that the man calling himself D.B. Cooper bailed out of the jet in the Lewis River area, and nothing has happened to shake that belief.

Where he landed has never been determined, but Manning still thinks Lake Merwin is a good bet.

Beach residents groan

By Donna duBeth
The Daily News

The handful of residents who live along the beach where part of D.B. Cooper's loot was found Sunday are kicking themselves for not building more sand castles.

They also wonder whether they should have paid more attention to the sand dredging operations along the beach.

Tina Bar is a stretch of sandy beach on the Washington side of the Columbia River northwest of Vancouver. The lonely country road that winds along the beach, Lower River Road, dead-ends about three miles from where a Vancouver family found about $3,000 beneath the sand Sunday while on a picnic. Rabbits bounce on the side of the road at night, startled by occasional passing cars.

Less than 10 houses are along the 12-mile stretch of beach road. Most of the land belongs to large dairy farms. The Fazio Bros. Sand Co. also fronts the river. A road leading through the Fazio gate is a popular path to the beach. It is the same path used by the family the day they found the money. On the east side of Fazio Bros. is Leeward Isle Marina, with a public fishing boat launch and one or two house boats.

During fishing season, the beach is packed from end to end, say local residents Clarence and Barbara Ellis. They have lived in their mobile home just down the road from Fazio Bros. for the past 30 years.

Every day Clarence takes his outboard skiff along Tina Bar patrolling the river and the beach for renegade logs that could damage other boats.

Ellis says that the Army Corps of Engineers continuously dredges sand directly off the shore from where the money was found.

"I betcha that dredging brought that money up and most of it's been destroyed by the dredging," he said. "Even the FBI is going to be able to figure that one out."

Today a spokesman for the Army Engineers said they were working closely with the FBI, checking out that lead. The sand sucked up from the bottom of the river and spewed onto the beach could have contained some or all of the long-sought money. While the dredging is continuous, the last time sand was deposited in that spot was in October 1974.

Another resident of the area said that the money was found too far from the water to have washed up. "It had to be the dredging. Maybe I'll go get me a shovel," said Mrs. J.W. Freeman.

The FBI dug all day Tuesday, finding bits and pieces of $20 bills. An agent guarding the site Tuesday evening said the amount they found during the day was less than the $3,000 originally dug up.

Tuesday night the Ellis family sat in their home decorated with fishing gear and large plants, amazed that some the D.B. Cooper money was showing up on the same beach their children grew up on.

"To think I worked like a slave all my life and here this money was right in my front yard," said Ellis. "When I think of the times my kids took the four-wheel drive right over that spot. I mean that's our beach. It belongs to the people we lease from and that's the beach we use."

His wife, Barbara, said she felt "kinda sick" not finding it. But she added that she would have turned it in. "Somebody could have lost it," she said.

The beach property actually belongs to the Hans Egger family of Vancouver. A baby sitter at the home said the Eggers were on vacation in California. They learned the money had been found on their property; when they listened to a television newscast Tuesday night.

"They were shocked," said the baby sitter.

On Nov. 24, 1971, a calm, middle-age man calling himself Dan Cooper bought a ticket for a Northwest Airlines flight to Seattle.

Shortly after takeoff, he handed a note to stewardess Florence Schaffner.

Thinking the man was trying to "hustle" her, she stuffed the note in her purse, but he motioned for her to read it.

The note said he had a bomb, and wanted to go to Mexico.

While the jet circled Seattle before landing, the skyjacker also ordered that $200,000 cash and four parachutes be brought to the plane.

The airline agreed, 36 passengers and part of the crew were allowed to leave, and the plane took off with the man and his ransom.

As it flew south, the rear airstair was lowered, and minutes later the plane reacted in a manner that convinced the crew that the skyjacker had bailed out somewhere in the Lewis River-Lake Merwin area east of Woodland.

Thus began the legend of D.B. Cooper (the name Dan Cooper somehow got lost in news media accounts of the incident.)

Cooper has never been found, but interest in the case is still strong, and flared Tuesday when the FBI announced a Vancouver family had found several thousand dollars of the ransom money on a Columbia River beach northwest of Vancouver.

Several stories about the case appear in today's issue of The Daily News.

FBI Halts Search For Cooper Clues & Loot

FBI agents yesterday called off their search on a sandy beach of the Columbia River west of Vancouver for more evidence of D.B. Cooper and the $200,000 he carried when he parachuted from a skyjacked airliner in November 1971.

"When the agents get back here next week, we'll discuss what direction to take next," said Jack Pringle, an FBI agent in Seattle.

One partly decomposed bundle of marked $20 bills from the Cooper loot was found Sunday by a family picnicking beside the river nine miles below Vancouver.

It probably will be at least a week before the FBI laboratory in Washington, D.C., will report on how much money was found, said Bill Williams, of the FBI office in Portland, Ore., whose agents dug and sifted the sand earlier this week.

Cooper is believed to have parachuted over Lake Merwin in Cowlitz County. No trace of him or the money is known to have been found until the discovery Sunday.

Williams said yesterday that Leonard Palmer, a geologist at Portland State University, concluded that the money drifted onto the river bank sometime after August 1974. The money lay in sand on top of spoil from a dredging operation that was conducted that month, Palmer told the FBI.

Pringle said that sooner or later the recovered money will be returned to its owner.

"We don't know who that is and it's not up to us to determine," he said. "It might be that a court will have to decide."

The $200,000 was delivered to Cooper aboard a Northwest Airline plane in Seattle after he skyjacked it.

Brent Baskfield, a Northwest public relations officer in St. Paul, Minn., said Northwest paid the money but has been reimbursed for most of it by The Globe Insurance Co. in New York City.

Pickings are slim in Cooper treasure hunt

by Richard Zahler
and Steve Johnston
Times staff reporters

Federal Bureau of Investigation treasure hunters returned to a cold and sandy Columbia River beach downstream from Vancouver, Wash., today seeking more clues to the eight-year-old D.B. Cooper skyjacking mystery.

The F.B.I. mixed a little science and technology with a lot of old-fashioned elbow grease yesterday in continued digging at the beach. Agents continued to find scraps of $20 bills in the area where a picnicking Vancouver family found three bundles of money Sunday.

Through serial numbers, those decomposed bundles of bills have been identified as "several thousand dollars" of the $200,000 given to the man who hijacked a Northwest Orient Airlines 727 in November, 1971, then parachuted from the jet with his loot. The F.B.I. believes he jumped somewhere in the vicinity of LaCenter, about 25 miles northeast of the beach where the money was found.

Yesterday's search, aided by a backhoe and advice from a Portland State University geologist, provided no clues how the money got to the beach or where it has been since the hijacking.

F.B.I. agents said the money still was packaged in the same order as it was given to the hijacker. The geologist said the money probably had been there for less than two years.

Kenneth Moore, a Seattle F.B.I. agent assigned to the case, said, "One reason for conducting an exhaustive search of this area would be to find other indications of what happened — pieces of clothing, pieces of bag, pieces of parachute or human remains, which in this case would be only bones."

The beach area is 7½ miles northwest of Vancouver on a stretch of shoreline used heavily by fishermen and lined with industrial plants and farms.

Moore and other agents said it would be just speculation to suggest that Cooper might have come down near the Columbia River beach, or that the search site might give any clue besides additional pieces of money. The round shape of the wads of money suggested that the cash could have tumbled along the river bed, agents said.

The farmers who own the shoreland, Al and Richard Fazio, said the place where the money was found is periodically underwater during high river runoff, like last week.

Moore said the currency might have been pumped on the beach during the dredging, but that was doubted by Dr. Leonard Palmer, Portland State geologist.

Palmer said the scraps of money had been found in looser sand, not in dredging spoils. The river last was dredged there in 1974.

Moore said the meager evidence suggests the hijacker "may have landed in the water, although not necessarily the Columbia."

Speculation that Cooper could have dropped into Lake Merwin, a reservoir on the Lewis River, was replaced this week by speculation he could have landed in the Washougal River watershed. The Lewis River enters downstream from the search area, the Washougal upstream from Vancouver.

But Moore said there were no plans to search upriver "unless evidence leads us to a more specific area."

Small pieces of currency were found yesterday in scattered places as they combed through sand several hundred feet downstream from Sunday's discovery site.

Other fragments showed up as agents shoveled sand through wire screens around the main site. The largest piece discovered yesterday was about the size of a stick of chewing gum. It was several layers thick.

Moore said the new fragments may once have been part of the destroyed bundles discovered Sunday.

Although there were several rewards offered for the discovery of the money or the arrest of D.B. Cooper, federal agents said it looked as if the Harold Ingram family is out of luck. Ingram's son, Brian, 8, uncovered the money.

"As far as I know, all reward offers have been canceled," a Portland F.B.I. agent, Bill Williams, said.

Roy Erickson, a spokesman for Northwest Orient in St. Louis, said the airline had settled with its insurance company, Globe of New York, several years ago and received $180,000.

"Our loss was covered by our insurance and so we are out of the situation now," he said.

Ralph Himmelsbach, a Portland F.B.I. agent who has worked on the D.B. Cooper case since 1971, said the finding of the money gave him "a certain sense of satisfaction," the Associated Press reported.

"The case isn't solved," Himmelsbach said, "but this is certainly a major milestone."

"So we know at least that he (Cooper) never spent this money, and we know that none of the money he was given has ever turned up in circulation."

Himmelsbach said Cooper's skeleton probably never will be found if it is in the forested mountain area where he is supposed to have landed.

"Unlike the money, Cooper is biodegradable," Himmelsbach said.

FBI: Cooper likely dead man

By KERRY WEBSTER
TNT Staff Writer

It's more likely than ever that the legendary D. B. Cooper is just a grinning skeleton in a nylon shroud, say FBI agents raking the sand for the last of his mouldering stash.

"The discovery of the money adds credence to the theory that he probably did not survive the jump," said Bill Williams, a special agent in Portland.

On the north bank of the Columbia River today, more than 30 FBI agents worked behind a cordon of armed sheriff's deputies, spading over every square foot of sand along 150 feet of shoreline.

The site is where eight-year-old Brian Ingram of Vancouver, digging idly in the sand with a stick on Sunday, turned up a sodden wad of $20 bills.

Serial numbers on the money — 12 stacks of twenties, still in their bank wrappings — matched some of those given to "Dan Cooper" when he hijacked Northwest Airlines Flight 305 on Thanksgiving Eve, 1971.

Flourishing what looked like a stick of dynamite, "Cooper" ordered the plane to fly from Seattle-Tacoma International Airport to Reno, Nev., after first demanding $200,000 and four parachutes.

The Boeing 727's flight recorder indicated that he jumped from the plane's lowered rear stairwell somewhere near Ariel, a tiny logging town in Southwest Washington.

No trace of Cooper or the hijacking loot had shown up in the past nine years. The mysterious air pirate in that time has become a cult figure, with sweatshirts, bumperstickers and endless pulp-magazine stories dedicated to the exploit.

FBI agents, who have been the butt of D. B. Cooper jokes for nine years, did not conceal a certain grim satisfaction when they announced the finding of the money in Seattle and Portland press conferences yesterday.

The fact that the money appears to have washed up on the riverbank, rather than having been purposely buried there, increases the chances that Cooper is dead.

"There is no way we can tell if he is dead or alive," said John Pringle, assistant agent in charge of the Seattle office. "We only know that if he is alive, he doesn't have this money."

The site of the find is about nine miles downriver from the Interstate 5 bridge over the Columbia between Portland and Vancouver. Young Ingram made the discovery while picnicking with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Dwayne Ingram.

The elder Ingram told reporters yesterday he was preparing to build a fire when his son "ran up and said, 'Wait a minute, Daddy.' He raked a place out in the sand, and there it was."

Ingram told The Associated Press he didn't even consider spending the money, because it looked so badly deteriorated.

The decomposed money was being sent today to the FBI crime lab in Washington, D.C., for examination. Pringle said there is a possibility that mud and soil deposited in the bundles may give a clue as to where they were washed from.

"We're going to be doing some study of tide tables and flood records, also," added Portland agent Williams today. "That'll tell us whether examining any of the Columbia's tributaries would be useful."

The Washougal River flows into the Columbia below the money site, and its origins are deep in the woods over which Cooper is believed to have jumped.

However, Williams noted, the Columbia is frequently dredged and often floods where the money was found, so the situation could be very confused.

Pringle said Cooper jumped with the money tied around his waist, and he said he believed "it was in a bag which would have deteriorated over this length of time."

He said a major objective of the search going on now is to find some other object that is connected to Cooper.

"We could find bones, or a piece of parachute," he said. "Nylon does not deteriorate rapidly."

Agents using spades and rakes have discovered a few more pieces of $20 bills, about the size of nickels and dimes, according to the FBI. The new discoveries were made within a three-foot radius of the original finding.

"We are planning to bring in some heavy equipment tomorrow to speed things up," Williams said. "The problem when you dig up a spadeful of sand is, what do you do with the sand?"

In Ariel, meanwhile, tavern owner Dave Fisher said the little town will go on with plans for its annual "D. B. Cooper party" at his Ariel Store & Tavern this Nov. 24.

"You know, if they find the body," he said, "we've got some sort of a memorial

More D.B. Cooper cash sought

by Richard Zahler
and Steve Johnston
Times staff reporters

VANCOUVER, Wash. — The Federal Bureau of Investigation brought a backhoe and experts in soil, archeology and river currents to a sandy Columbia River beach west of here today to seek more clues into the 8-year-old D.B. Cooper hijacking mystery.

An 8-year-old boy Sunday uncovered on the beach a small part of the $200,000 the legendary hijacker had strapped to his body when he parachuted from a Northwest Orient Airlines 727 over Southwestern Washington November 24, 1971.

F.B.I. agents yesterday found more fragments of $20 bills while digging at the beach. Paul Hudson, the F.B.I.'s on-site coordinator, said the fragments — the size of nickels and quarters — were found as much as 5 feet away from where the money was found Sunday. Some fragments were 3 feet under the surface.

Hudson said the bureau is trying to determine possible ways the money reached the beach. The river recently covered the beach, he said.

Hudson also noted that the Columbia River channel is dredged periodically and sand from the river bottom is pumped on the shore.

"It's possible that it washed up here a period of time ago . . . not 9 years ago but not necessarily recently," Hudson said.

Brian Ingram
Got scoop on skyjacker

Discovery of the money "probably raises as many questions as it does answers," Hudson said. "In my own mind I can rule out the possibility that (the money) was buried here."

Hudson said whether searchers might find Cooper's remains in the area is "one of the questions we hope to answer today."

The beach is about nine miles west of Vancouver, adjacent to a dairy farm and a popular spot for steelhead fishing. Today a Clark County deputy sheriff was at the farm gate, turning away fishermen and the curious.

One longtime fisherman, Sidney Tipper, 80, of Vancouver, was admitted to fish. Tipper said, "I've been going up and down this river for 10 years. The money wasn't very deep. If it had been here (a long time) I think we'd have seen it."

The F.B.I. said yesterday it presumes the money had been washed downstream, possibly from a tributary to the Columbia. An Army Engineers hydrologist said that the Washougal River was the only tributary that might have carried the money. The Washougal is the first Washington tributary upstream from Vancouver.

William M. Baker, assistant special agent for the Portland F.B.I. office, said he expected searches would be carried out along the Columbia to the mouth of the Washougal and possibly up the Washougal.

The money recovered Sunday, in three bundles of decomposing $20 bills, was discovered by Brian Ingram, 8, of Vancouver. The boy

Phones 'ringing off the hook' at Ariel

by Richard Zahler
Times staff reporter

ARIEL, Cowlitz County — Not much happens in Ariel, a small logging community 11 miles east of Woodland.

Until a hijacker vanished mysteriously over Southwest Washington more than eight years ago, probably nothing happened in Ariel.

But D.B. Cooper put the town on the map, and yesterday and last night the telephones at the Ariel Store & Tavern were "ringing off the hook" said Dave Fisher, the owner.

Ariel happens to be near Lake Merwin, and a number of theorists suggested that Cooper might have gone into the reservoir behind the Ariel dam.

Since 1976 the Ariel Tavern has hosted an annual D.B. Cooper party on November 24, the anniversary of the hijacking in 1971. Every year 200 to 300 people have shown up to eat buffalo stew and see whether Cooper would answer the standing invitation to join the party.

He never has, of course.

Fisher bought the tavern and the tradition 15 months ago, and until 3:30 yesterday afternoon, "I wasn't expecting a thing tonight. It's pretty dead in winter."

But then the Federal Bureau of Investigation announced in Seattle and Portland that part of $200,000 given to the hijacker had been found along the banks of the Columbia River near Vancouver.

The moldering money, about $4,000, was found by a family picnicking along the river north of Portland. A young boy digging in the sandy riverbanks with a stick uncovered the loot.

After that, Fisher said, "It was just like the D.B. Cooper party."

Fisher said he had been on the run answering telephone calls from television-network reporters in New York and newspapers and radio stations all over the West Coast.

Only about 20 or 30 patrons were in the Ariel Tavern last night, and most were paying as much attention to playing pool as to the Cooper talk. A weekly Tuesday-night pool match with the Riverside Tavern in Woodland had been moved to Ariel last night at the request of a Portland television station interested in filming reaction to the discovery of the money.

Fisher and others said they were mystified as to how the money arrived on the banks of the Columbia River, but they still would have to be persuaded that the hijacker didn't survive after he bailed out of the Boeing 727.

"I still think he's alive, until they find some bones," Fisher said.

He said the finding could lead to other developments, pointing out that the discovery by the boy was a strange first trace of Cooper after so many years.

Then the telephone rang in the next room, Fisher raced to answer it, laughed and announced, "San Jose calling."

Finally, a fact is added to Cooper saga

by Steve Johnston
Times staff reporter

Passengers on Flight 305 remembered the man as a quiet-spoken sort wearing a dark brown suit. He took the last seat on the right-hand side of the Northwest Orient Airline's flight out of Portland heading for Seattle.

The only thing unusual about the man was that he wore sun glasses, unusual because it was a rainy day on November 24, 1971, a day before Thanksgiving.

The man checked aboard the Boeing 727 under the name of "Dan Cooper" in Portland, the last leg of the flight that had started in Washington, D.C.

By the time the plane finally set down in Reno several hours later, the man who became known as "D.B. Cooper" was gone, along with $200,000 in $20 bills, two parachutes and a briefcase which Cooper told the stewardess contained a bomb.

Somewhere in Southwest Washington, D.B. Cooper had bailed out at 10,000 feet into dark storm clouds and into history. He would remain to this day the only hijacker in the United States ever to escape arrest.

Over the last seven years, the F.B.I. has questioned more than 1,000 possible suspects, chased down thousands of leads and heard from hundreds of people who claim either to be Cooper or to know his whereabouts.

But it took an 8-year-old Vancouver, Wash., boy to uncover the only piece of concrete evidence that Cooper really did bail out into the dense forest of Southwest Washington.

Until Brian Ingram dug up 12 packets of $20 bills while on a picnic with his family along the Columbia River, law-enforcement officers only assumed D.B. Cooper jumped over Southwest Washington. The plane's recorder showed a "low pressure bump" at 8:11 p.m. near Woodland, and when the plane landed in Reno, the hijacker couldn't be found.

Hundreds of searchers spread out over the area around Woodland, hoping either to find the body or the money or just a piece of the parachute dangling from a tree. Most parachute experts consulted at the time agreed it would be almost impossible for Cooper to survive the plunge.

But within days of the hijacking, the legend of D.B. Cooper started to build. People started to talk about him as a modern-day Robin Hood. They admired the daring, the planning and the execution of the jump.

Slowly but surely, the reports of encounters with Cooper started to come out. A man in Woodland said someone knocked at his back door on November 24 about the time Cooper would have landed, but he didn't answer. Other people started turning in friends who looked like Cooper, in hopes of collecting the $25,000 reward.

Then the stories started to appear. The now defunct Seattle Flag ran several pages of purported interview with Cooper, and two Kitsap County men were arrested for selling a fake interview with Cooper to a former contributing editor of Newsweek for $30,000.

Five months ago, two Tacoma men said they had talked with D.B. Cooper, who, they said, was living in Puyallup. The man told them that the money was buried under a pile of garbage at the Puyallup dump.

Mostly, however, people just have had fun with the D.B. Cooper story. T-shirts with the picture of D.B. Cooper in his sunglasses and bearing the legend, "D.B. Cooper, Where Are You?" became popular, and there even was a song written about him.

The residents of Ariel, Cowlitz County, near where Cooper supposedly bailed out, started holding an annual "D.B. Cooper Day" to commemorate the event. The festival, called the "Cooper Caper," featured buffalo stew and sky divers and attracted more than 800 people. But not, apparently, D.B. Cooper.

As for the two Federal Bureau of Investigation agents who have been on the case since it began, they say they believe D.B. Cooper probably died the night he went out the plane.

"It is my personal opinion that he is dead," said Joseph O'Connell, who has retired. "He jumped out of a plane at 10,000 feet on a cold, raw night and he jumped in an area densely populated with Douglas fir and ponderosa pine."

Ralph Himmelsbach, Portland, F.B.I. agent who is to retire February 29, said he was "delighted" about the money being found. He said the find reduced the chances of Cooper ever being found alive to "less than 50-50."

More Of D.B.'s Ransom Found

By Neil Modie

FBI agents yesterday found bits of more $20 bills buried in the sand beside the Columbia River near Vancouver, Wash., and said it was more of the $200,000 ransom collected in 1971 by airline hijacker D.B. Cooper.

Agents speculated earlier in the day that the muck and sand the money was buried in may have been dredge material. But they discounted that theory after a geologist examined the site, about 10 miles northwest of Vancouver.

"His (the geologist's) feeling is that the probabilities are that the material was washed ashore rather than (being in) dredged sand," FBI - Agent Ralph Himmelsbach of Portland told The Post-Intelligencer last night.

Children on a family outing on Sunday found the first half-decomposed packets of $20 bills with which Cooper had parachuted from a Northwest Orient jetliner on Thanksgiving Eve, Nov. 24, 1971.

The total was between $1,000 and $4,000, Himmelsbach said, and serial numbers checked matched numbers on the marked bills given Cooper.

The money was found farther downriver from Vancouver than FBI agents had estimated Tuesday, when they announced the discovery, and it caused Himmelsbach to return to the theory he has had since 1971 that Cooper landed — dead or alive — in the vicinity of Lake Merwin on the Lewis River about 25 miles north of Vancouver.

Himmelsbach, the agent in charge of the investigation since the hijacking took place, said he believes the dozen packets of greenbacks were gradually washed down the Lewis River and into the Columbia River. Then, he said, ocean tides could have pushed them several miles up the Columbia to where they were found.

There was speculation Tuesday that the site was too far up the Columbia for the money to have come from the Lewis River.

However, Himmelsbach said yesterday, "My understanding is that this is tidal water, and if so, there are times that this (river) runs backward. So it could have run upstream that far."

Did Cooper, lightly dressed and buffeted by wind and freezing rain when he parachuted from the airliner, drop the money on the way down?

"That's a good possibility," Himmelsbach said. "There's also the possibility that he just took the money, and neither he nor the money left there (where he landed)."

"I feel this is an indication that probably he didn't make it (alive), and it has been my feeling that probably he didn't make it because of the circumstances of the jump and the fact that he didn't have the proper equipment for parachuting," Himmelsbach continued.

"He didn't have a hardhat, goggles, leather gloves, jump suit or jump boots. He didn't have any of those things and he sure needed them all."

"I don't think the fall killed him," Himmelsbach theorized, "but there was that sudden stop. I think probably there was good likelihood he was injured during the fall and didn't have any help . . . and was unable to extricate himself (from wherever he fell). And probably is still there."

Agents continued digging yesterday, and Himmelsbach said he didn't know how long they would continue.

There was no trace at the site of the legendary extortionist nor of his parachute, and Himmelsbach indicated he didn't expect to find such evidence there.

The ransom money was given to Cooper at Seattle-Tacoma International Airport after he threatened to blow up the 727 trijet while on a flight from Portland. At Sea-Tac, he allowed all the passengers and all but four members of the crew to leave, demanded and received the $200,000 and four parachutes, and had the plane depart for Reno, Nev.

The skyjacker bailed out over Southwest Washington.

Sunday's find was particularly satisfying for Himmelsbach, who on Feb. 29 is scheduled to retire from the FBI after a career of nearly 29 years — more than eight of which were spent trying to solve the Cooper caper. The discovery of the money was the first solid break in the case.

"It doesn't increase my (retirement) annuity any, but it does make me happy," Himmelsbach said.

Found D.B.'s Loot!

Kids Dig Up Hijack Cash

By Neil Modie

More than eight years after D.B. Cooper parachuted into rainy darkness from a hijacked airliner, part of his $200,000 loot was found buried in a river bank near Vancouver, Wash., the FBI announced yesterday.

Badly weathered and apparently washed ashore from the Columbia River, the stacks of $20 bills say nothing encouraging about the fate of the legendary hijacker.

"It can tell you a number of things — either he dropped the money or he's dead," commented John D. Pringle, assistant special agent in charge of the FBI office in Seattle. "We can't tell at this point."

For Ralph Himmelsbach of Portland, the FBI agent in charge of the investigation since it began, the discovery reinforces his opinion that Cooper died after he parachuted from a Northwest Orient 727 trijet on Thanksgiving Eve, 1971.

BRIAN INGRAM
The money in the sand

Himmelsbach said the find reduced to "less than 50 - 50" the odds that Cooper is still alive.

The money was found Sunday by an 8-year-old Vancouver boy, Brian Ingram, and his 5-year-old cousin, Denise, as they were digging in the sand with sticks along the river bank during a family outing.

"This clue is the first we've had since the night of the occurrence," said Bill Baker, assistant special agent in charge of the Portland office, which the Ingram family contacted on Monday.

The money was found about 25 miles southwest of the area where the FBI had thought it most likely Cooper landed after he parachuted from the jetliner into a freezing rainstorm on Nov. 24, 1971.

The hijacker, who had used the name "Dan Cooper" to buy his airline ticket, boarded the jet in Portland, threatened to blow it up with what he claimed was a bomb in his briefcase, then forced it to land in Seattle to collect the ransom.

Cooper allowed 36 passengers aboard the flight to leave, then ordered the crew of four to fly it to Reno after $200,000 in marked bills and four parachutes demanded by the hijacker were brought on board.

As the southbound airliner passed over Southwest Washington, the hijacker — wearing only a business suit and street shoes — parachuted through a rear stairwell door.

As "Dan Cooper" became a legend, the name "D.B. Cooper" — as an FBI agent had initially identified him — became the name that stuck.

The FBI said his chances of survival were slim because he was lightly dressed for jumping into a howling wind and a freezing rain in a parachute not likely to work.

Agents have theorized that his remains are at the bottom of Merwin, its forest of undergrowth snags entangling his parachute, or VANCOUVER, Wash. — (AP) — Brian Ingram, the 8-year-old who uncovered some of D.B. Cooper's hijack loot, will get to keep one of the frayed $20 bills as a souvenir.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation also gave the Vancouver boy a certificate praising him for his discovery.

Brian was helping his father, Harold, build a fire on a Columbia River beach February 10 when he uncovered three bundles of weathered $20 bills. The bills were the first evidence uncovered in the case since Cooper hijacked the jetliner in 1971.

'Wait a minute Daddy' jolts Cooper story

Title: NORJAK

By Thomas Ryll
Vancouver Columbian

VANCOUVER, Wash. (AP) — It started as a Sunday picnic on a chilly river beach for a Vancouver, Wash., family and became a new chapter in the legend of D.B. Cooper.

With one sweep of his arm, 8-year-old Brian Ingram discovered Sunday what thousands of searchers failed to find — a bundle of $20 bills, now deteriorated, demanded by the infamous, parachuting skyjacker in 1971.

Tuesday night in an interview with the Vancouver Columbian, Brian, his father, H. Dwayne, and his mother, Patricia, recounted the events of a casual outing that unearthed what one official called the "most important discovery" in the 8½-year-old case. At the same time, the elder Ingram described finding several thousand dollars of soggy cash as "heartbreaking" without a penny of reward money in sight.

The family and two relatives were walking along the Columbia River near a sand company about 3:30 p.m. Sunday. They decided to gather wood for a fire to take the chill off the 40-degree temperature.

"I gathered an armload of firewood," said Ingram, 28, a painter for U-Card Manufacturing, a Vancouver firm. "He (Brian) was doing his part, happy and enthusiastic. I was about ready to set the wood down and he said, 'Wait a minute, Daddy.'"

Brian, a second-grader at Hough Elementary School, knelt beneath his father to smooth a spot for the fire. He swept the river sand only once, uncovering three worn bundles of $20 bills.

"I seen that money, I thought 'Wow!'" recalled the slender, towheaded youngster, who said it was the first money he ever found. "I went over to my parents and they thought it was counterfeit."

Unknown to them, Brian had uncovered part of a $200,000 ransom handed over to a man calling himself Dan Cooper on Nov. 24, 1971. Cooper demanded the cash as ransom and hijacked a Northwest Airline Boeing 727 jet in Seattle.

As the plane flew south to Reno, Nev., Cooper bailed out from the jet's rear stairway with the bundled money, wrapped in a parachute and tied to his body.

Authorities believe he jumped over southwest Washington.

The Ingrams, who moved here from Oklahoma less than a year ago, said they were aware of the D.B. Cooper saga but did not connect it to their find.

Neither did the buried treasure put a damper on the afternoon activities. "We had a picnic," said Ingram. "We forgot about the money and had a great time."

Back home about 5:30 p.m. Sunday, the bills, eroded into lozenge-shaped piles, were placed unceremoniously atop a kitchen cabinet to dry.

"I was thinking about decoupageing them and putting them on a board," said Mrs. Ingram, 26.

"I thought it might have been mob money or lost money I just didn't know what to think, but it was just money that looked useless to me."

Monday, during his 10 a.m. coffee break, Ingram called a local bank to see whether the battered bills could be exchanged for new ones. A bank employee told him it could be done if the serial numbers were intact, but added a check would be made of the numbers.

Ingram said he brooded on that the rest of the day and called the Portland FBI office Monday evening, reading several serial numbers to an agent.

When Ingram called back 30 minutes later, "they said they'd like to talk to me."

It was not until Tuesday morning that he learned the money was part of the Cooper caper.

Tuesday evening, the couple watched themselves on national television. By then, they had grown weary of the day's hectic activities and exuded disappointment in learning that apparently no reward awaits their honesty.

"It's just heartbreaking that nothing may come of this," Ingram said.

"I went from a rich man to a poor man without hardly making a move."

Supporting a family of four and making the $200 a month rent payment for their ragged westside home is tough at times, Ingram said, adding "If all this fame came with a little fortune, I would talk to everyone in the world about this story."

He abruptly ended the interview minutes later, turning his eyes to the television set, saying, "If you don't mind, I've waited five years to see this movie (The Exorcist) on television."

Mystery remains in the saga of D.B. Cooper

PORTLAND, Ore. — The mystery surrounding D.B. Cooper's skyjacking and disappearance eight years ago has been rekindled by a Vancouver, Wash., family's inadvertent discovery of worn packets of $20 bills on the Columbia River shoreline — part of Cooper's $200,000 ransom.

The saga which changed the nature of airline piracy began on Thanksgiving Day, 1971, when Cooper boarded Northwest Airlines flight 305 for a flight from Portland to Seattle. Once aboard, he handed a crew member a note, saying he was carrying a bomb in a satchel and wanted $200,000 in unmarked $20 bills.

When the jetliner landed at the Seattle-Tacoma International Airport that evening, authorities had arranged the cash and had also obtained four parachutes, as instructed by Cooper.

Cooper then allowed the flight's 36 passengers and all crew members but two pilots and one stewardess to disembark. He then ordered the aircraft to take off for Reno, Nev.

At one point in that flight, the crew felt a fluctuation in cabin pressure which suggested the jetliner's rear cabin door had opened.

Agent 'explains' beachfront deposit

PORTLAND (UPI) — Ralph Himmelsbacn, the Federal Bureau of Investigation agent who has headed the D.B. Cooper case since the 1971 hijacking, outlines this "possible scenario" to explain how some of the Cooper money washed up on the beach west of Vancouver:

"Probably the money (in the bag) came down close to the bank of a stream. When the water got high enough it washed downstream, bumping along the bottom. The bag finally degraded.

"Perhaps it could have burst on impact, but that is not likely. We think finally, tumbling down the river bottom, it broke open and the money was carried on, wearing off little bits and pieces around the edges, grinding it down like it had been ground with sandpaper or a file, leaving the center portion."

Dear [redacted]:

b6
b7C

This letter is in regards to the parachuting skyjacking on November 24, 1971 of a Northwest Airlines plane between Seattle, Washington and Reno, Nevada. This case has, so far, not been solved and the skyjacker who collected $200,000 is known only as D.B. Cooper.

In a telephone conversation on November 8, 1973 with [redacted] at Northwest Airlines, St. Paul, Minnesota, we discussed rewards offered in this case. He told me of rewards having been offered of 10% of recovered amounts, or possibly $25,000 if all is recovered. [redacted] also told me of a Seattle newspaper offering $5000.

b7C

By telephone conversation on November 6, 1973 and personal meeting on November 8, 1973, [redacted] gave information to special agent Bob Stranger of the Wilshire Office of the F.B.I. in Los Angeles. This information concerned possibilities of a [redacted] as a suspect in the November 24, 1971 skyjacking. Since November 8, 1973 we have had other contacts with Special Agent Bob Stranger.

b7C

This information re-opened the investigation of [redacted] as a suspect. Until the November 8, 1971 meeting between Special Agent Bob Stranger and [redacted] had been presumed [redacted] on November 21, 1973 (three days before the skyjacking). We gave evidence that he is alive and also clues that there might be a link between him and the skyjacking.

b6
b7C

This letter is to serve as claim to any such available rewards should [redacted] be brought to justice in connection with the parachuting skyjack of November 24, 1971 of the Northwest Airline.

b6

Any reward is to be kept absolutely confidential and is to be [redacted] Glendale, California [redacted] Monrovia, California [redacted]. There is, of course, a risk of revenge

RE: Sub M - MONEY

On June 1, 1973, BILL CLAUSNER, Sheriff of Stevenson, Washington, advised that $480 worth of $20 bills, 1950 series, were found in a home in North Bonneyville, Washington. CLAUSNER advised an elderly lady was living in the home and moved to Goldendale, Washington, to be nearer her family. The elderly lady is named Mrs. MIDLAND, according to CLAUSNER.

Subsequent to her move, an envelope was discovered in the vacant home containing the $20 bills. CLAUSNER advised all of the $20 bill serial numbers were run through NCIC, as well as compared with serial numbers on the D. B. COOPER ransom list. There was no match either in NCIC or with the D. B. COOPER ransom list.

It is noted all the D. B. COOPER ransom serial numbers have been entered into NCIC.

No further investigation appears to be warranted concerning this matter.

During the trial of [redacted] and [redacted], it was necessary to testify that a microfilm had been prepared of the ransom money paid to the hijacker of Northwest Airlines Flight 305. In tracing back the preparation of the microfilm, the following information was revealed:

b6
b7C

Through [redacted] Seattle-First National Bank, it was learned that the actual microfilming of the money was done by their employee, [redacted] who can be located at telephone number [redacted].

b6
b7C

On December 14, 1972, [redacted] advised that the money was microfilmed on a Recordak Model RW600, by [redacted]. He advised that the machine normally takes both the front and back sides of the document but in the case of the filming of the money, they blocked out the back of the bill as well as one half of the front side.

b7C

At issue in the testimonies of [redacted] was whether or not there could be some distortion in the numbers of the bills due to the fact they were taken at an angle. [redacted], who is familiar with these machines, stated that although a series of mirrors is used to record the images of the checks or money, the surface of the document must be square to the film plane. Therefore, he advised there is no angle and no known distortion.

FBI hopes hunters may find clues

The FBI is hopeful that one of several thousand deer hunters beating the brush in Cowlitz and Clark counties this fall may run across evidence of D.B. Cooper (or whatever his name is) who parachuted out of a jetliner nearly a year ago with about 40 pounds of $20 bills.

The State Game Department is cooperating with the FBI and will distribute thousands of ~~form~~ letters asking hunters for their help and outlining what to look for.

J. E. Milnes, special agent in charge at Seattle, asks hunters or campers to contact the FBI if any of the following is noticed:

(1) The remains of a man, possibly dead for one year.

(2) The remnants of a parachute, harness or parachute shroud lines.

(3) Ten thousand $20 bills wrapped in a parachute canopy. The serial numbers are known and can be identified.

(4) Deteriorated raincoat or overcoat.

(5) Small briefcase or attache case. Tom Manning, special FBI agent in Longview, urged anyone having any information concerning this matter to report to the nearest FBI office or call the Seattle office collect, MA2-0460.

The area where the search is being concentrated is bound on the west by Interstate Highway 5, on the south by the Columbia River, on the north by the Kalama River, and on the east by the Skamania-Clark county line.

Re Memo of SA [redacted] to SAC, 8/1/72

Referenced memorandum contained information regarding [redacted] alleging that he is able to locate currency by means of [redacted].

On 8/2/72 [redacted] telephonically advised that [redacted] had changed his original location of a currency cache to a spot approximately 2½ miles east of the original location. It should be noted that the new location is approximately on line of flight of the hijacked aircraft as set forth on original maps and in other data, and also approximately 1½ miles from Point A, of a triangulated search area, in a northerly direction.

On 8/3/72 the writer, [redacted] and [redacted] went to the intersection of County Roads 16 and 32 in Clark County where [redacted] and [redacted] exhibited time honored techniques [redacted]. This resulted in producing what they concluded to be the direction and approximate location of a large sum of currency. Three other reference points were located on County Road 20 and using the same method angles were determined setting up a triangle in which this large amount of currency is believed to be located by [redacted].

One other reference point, being Point A (Supra), was located, after which both [redacted], using their technique produced an angle which when extended appeared to contact the previously established location within the triangle.

Maps explaining the above information are attached to this communication.

The writer to test the veracity of the technique used hid small sums of currency in various locations and observed both [redacted] locate the hidden currency using the [redacted].

It is felt consideration should be given to exploring the possibility that a large sum of currency is located at the area outlined in red on one of the attached maps.

Re: MURKIN

FBI File No.

164-2111

Case No.

D-782437020 LL

Specimens available at the Bureau:

Q43 Photocopy of three U. S. twenty-dollar bills bearing serial numbers L 54994736 A, L 33529787 A and L 28169977 A

Specimens received from FBI, Seattle 4/27/72:

K4 One roll of microfilm of ransom money

ALSO SUBMITTED: Three photocopies made from microfilm of ransom bills bearing serial numbers L 54994736 A, L 33529787 A and L 28169977 A Result of examination:

The bills represented by Q43 were compared with corresponding bills represented by K4. In the comparison, photographic overlays of the Q43 bills showed the serial numbers on these bills to be out of register with the serial numbers on the K4 bills.

The examination definitely determined that the Q43 bills are not a part of the ransom money represented by the K4 microfilm.

K4 is returned herewith. Appropriate photographs made from K4 and the ALSO SUBMITTED items are retained.

Being sent to the Bureau by pilot courier is one roll of microfilm listing the ransom paid in the captioned case.

Making reference to the xerox copies of three $20 bills which allegedly were in the possession of person identified as "D. B. COOPER" and given to [redacted], located on the microfilm and marked with a small piece of tape. These $20 bills are as follows:

b6
b7c

L54904730A, series 1969

L33629797A, series 1969

L20168977A, series 1969

It was noted that only the right half of the bill was microfilmed. When these bills were located on the microfilm, a print was made and a copy was included.

It is presumed the Bureau already has a xerox copy of the three bills with the corner folded over as originally made available to Seattle.

The above film is being sent via Northwest Airlines Flight 78, departing Seattle at 9:15 a.m. April 27, 1972, Pacific Standard Time, and arriving Dulles International Airport, 4:55 p.m. Eastern Standard Time, April 27, 1972.

DATE: 4/26/72

FROM : SAC, SEATTLE

SUBJECT: NORJAK

[REDACTED] - SOURCE

On 4/26/72 I called SA [REDACTED] at the Bureau.

I told him we had some representatives of the Secret Service look at the Xerox copies of the bills purported to be in [REDACTED] possession.

I advised him that according to the Secret Service representatives there is always a capitalized letter and a small number on the upper left-hand corner of each bill. The same capitalized letter with the same or a different number appears in the lower right-hand corner of the bill.

On Bill No. 1 the number and letter in the upper left corner, according to the Xerox, is C 4. The microfilm of this same bill, however, shows the letter in the lower right corner of that same bill to be H, the letter being obscured. According to the Secret Service, both of these letters should be the same and clearly they are not.

With Bill No. 2, according to the Xerox the letter in the upper left corner is E 2, whereas the microfilm is rather unclear but there appears to be an F in the lower right corner.

He advised that the Bureau of engraving has looked at the bills and think that one of the digits in the serial number of bill No. 1 is off.

I told him we were endeavoring to locate the third bill and would let him know when done. In the meantime we were trying to get a clear look at Bill No. 2.

For consideration of the Bureau, it is noted that the Nation of Liberia, in Africa, utilizes as its legal tender currency of the United States. It would appear that any person wishing to exchange a quantity of U. S. currency in such a manner as to avoid connection with a crime through identifiable funds could do so there with a minimum of exposure. Accordingly, it is suggested the Bureau may wish to disseminate the ransom money list in this matter to appropriate Liberian authorities through liaison channels.

Spokane, Wash.

This confirms our telephone conversation this date.

At approximately 12:05 p.m. this date the writer received a telephone call in the Spokane RA from a young man who refused to reveal his identity but who advised as follows:

He first wanted to know if there is a reward for the hijack money. He said he can take us to it and even to the room next to where it is maintained. He said he is concerned about prosecution himself as an accessory or having knowledge. He has a bad record. He was in jail when the hijacking took place. He said about 95% of the money is available but he could not tell me how much money in dollars is involved which might indicate he does not know how much was paid in ransom. He wants guarantee of non-prosecution and no publicity. He said the money is not in Spokane and not in this State. He said he is interested in "hard cash" and wants to know how much he can get.

The caller sounded coherent and clear and intelligent. He was advised that no figure of reward could be told to him now but that if he assisted in this matter he would be reasonably and profitably compensated.

Later this afternoon, the writer was informed by [REDACTED] the "Spokane Daily Chronicle" that at approximately 12:30 p.m. [REDACTED] of the "Chronicle" received a phone call from a young man who apparently is the same person that called the writer.

SUBJECT: NORJAK

On 2/4/72, SPC [REDACTED] advised writer that he had heard from [REDACTED] (LNU) that a bill taken in this matter had been located at the Seattle-First National Bank, Vancouver, Wash., branch. [REDACTED] had heard this from [REDACTED]

SA CHARLES FARRELL did not know anything about the matter and talked directly with [REDACTED] himself. [REDACTED] stated that he had just talked to the lady and she stated she had just heard the tail end of a conversation dealing with what appeared to be a $20 bill in "evidence" wrapping and assumed this was part of the NORJAK money. [REDACTED] gave this woman's name as [REDACTED] [REDACTED] Vancouver, Wash., phone [REDACTED].

After being advised of the situation by SA FARRELL, SA THOMAS MANNING called [REDACTED] at the number given. She advised that the bill described above had been brought in by a Secret Service Agent. The bill was counterfeit and the agent was apparently doing routine background investigation. He asked many of the tellers questions pertaining to who might have passed the bill. This took place on Thursday, 2/3/72. That afternoon [REDACTED] went to lunch with [REDACTED] and in the course of the conversation, [REDACTED] told her about this bill. At this point, one of the two mentioned something about the possibility of it being one of the bills taken in the hijacking. When [REDACTED] in Vancouver, she told [REDACTED] (LNU) who is [REDACTED], about the bill and it seems this is where the counterfeit bill turned into one of the hijacked bills.

ASAC's Portland and Seattle are cognizant of this matter.

The ransom money obtained by Northwest Airlines was microfilmed by the [redacted]. The original roll of film contained on one reel, was picked up by SA [redacted] and sent to the Laboratory by United Airlines courier. Since the above roll of film contained the serial numbers of $230,000, it was necessary to furnish the serial numbers of the $30,000 which was not included in the ransom (the ransom being $200,000).

b6
b7C

Because the Laboratory was having difficulty with eliminating the serial numbers, they requested we obtain the complete list of serial numbers which were deleted from the original listing of the $230,000.

In the meantime, the [redacted] had prepared another amount of ransom money of $230,000 and included in that, the $30,000 which had been taken from the first ransom money as mentioned in paragraph one above.

b6
b7C

The [redacted] then loaned to us, two reels of microfilm which contains their current ransom money and which included the bills which had been taken from the first ransom money. These two rolls of microfilm were sent to the Laboratory and were used to compile an accurate list of the ransom money given to the hijacker.

b6
b7C

All three reels of film returned by the Bureau with the following dispositions:

The reel containing the ransom money given to the hijacker is being maintained in the Seattle Office as evidence

Lists of Hijack Bills Distributed

Lists of serial numbers of the bills given to hijacker "D. B. Cooper" have been distributed to banks and other financial institutions in this area, the Federal Bureau of Investigation has announced.

J. Earl Milnes, special agent in charge of the FBI office here, said anyone who thinks he or she might have one of the 10,000 $20 bills that were given to "Cooper" the night of Nov. 24 when he hijacked a Northwest Orient Airlines plane, may contact the FBI office here.

The FBI's telephone number is MA 2-0460.

"Cooper," who bailed out of the plane somewhere between Seattle and Reno, is still at large.

Anyone who has information that might lead to his arrest and conviction should contact Secret Witness, P. O. Box 298, Seattle, Wash. 98111. A $5,000 reward has been posted.

Dear :

I appreciate your thoughtfulness in writing to me and forwarding your suggestion concerning the distribution of the list of currency paid in the hijacking of Northwest Airlines Flight 305.

While undoubtedly there is considerable merit to your suggestion, we have not been in the practice of selling the material we distribute. We are trying to get this published through the news media. Whether we succeed or not will be determined in time.

Sincerely yours,

MEMO TO EARL MILNES

Dear Earl:

After I called you this morning, I told [] I would call back in the afternoon but I was [] and didn't get back as early as I had figured.

b6
b7C

With current events as they are, I know that you have your hands full and I don't intend to take but just a moment of your time.

[] were discussing the extensive list which had to be printed and sent out with regard to the currency which was turned over to the hijacker and the cost (to the taxpayers) which was run up in getting the booklet printed and mailed all over the country. This may or may not be a matter of particular interest to you, [] came up with an idea which might help recover some of those printing costs and, with any luck, might even turn up some of the items which are listed.

b7C

That is for the FBI to get a news release out to every daily newspaper (thru AP or UPI wire) that copies of the list of bills, in booklet form, are available to anyone interested at a cost of $1.00 apiece. Not that she nor I subscribe to the "hero-worship" concept we've been reading about, but we believe there'd be hundreds who would like to get ahold of a copy...either for curiosity's sake or as a souvenir item. In addition to making the books available for a buck apiece, the news item could also point out that if an actual bill was turned up, J. Edgar Hoover would buy it back for $21.00, thereby returning their investment on the book.

I know it may sound weird but, on the other hand, I can see how it also might even turn up some real good leads.

Dear Sir: The following information is being furnished to you for your information.

Northwest Airlines Flight #305 enroute from Portland, Oregon, to Seattle, on November 24, 1971, was hijacked and a ransom demand made of Northwest Airlines for $200,000.

The hijacker instructed that the $200,000 as well as four parachutes be ready by 5:00 PM, on November 24, 1971.

Northwest Airlines then arranged with Seattle-First National Bank, Seattle, to make the $200,000 available and the same was microfilmed for later evidentiary use. The film is now in possession of the Seattle Office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

SUBJECT: NORJAK

On 12/10/71 I called SA HENRY SHUTZ at the Bureau.

I told him we were contacting a number of daily newspapers, urging them as a public service to publish serial numbers of the bills taken in this case. I suggested that as an economic matter it might be more desirable to have the Bureau prepare a mat containing these numbers, which could be distributed to newspapers and used by them as a means of printing and thereby, hopefully, be able to encourage more to print the list.

I talked to SA BLAND about this matter and he advised that it would have to be initiated by the investigative division.

... SA SHUTZ called me back on 12/10/71 and advised they were exploring the possible costs of this matter and would let us know Monday.

In the meantime I had talked to [redacted] of the SEATTLE P-I, and to [redacted] of the SEATTLE TIMES, inquiring of them if as a public service would they be interested in publishing the list. Both advised it would be considered and they would let us know.

I called the Bureau on 12/9/71 and talked to SA HENRY SHUTZ. I told him it was our feeling here that we should get cooperative newspapers to publish this bait list and to generate as much enthusiasm as we could among the public and perhaps somebody would come up with one of these $20 bills. I wondered if the Bureau had given consideration to instructing all SAC's to have this done.

He called back and said they were not going to do this because first, they did not think most newspapers would publish it; second, they did not want all SAC's to have the feeling that they had to get it published, which might cause a great deal of difficulty around the field. He said he thought their instructions were sufficient, that if we could arrange to get it published in our division, and if we wanted to call other offices on a selected basis, and see if the SAC's could work out some arrangement to publish it, he would leave that up to us. He definitely stated that we had authority to get the list published if we so desired.

The title is marked "Changed" to reflect the code word "NORJAK" to facilitate the handling of the numerous communications in connection with this investigation. This matter was formerly captioned, "Unsub; Northwest Airlines Flight 305, 11/24/71, CAA - Hijacking. OO: Seattle." All offices are instructed to use the code word "NORJAK" in all communications in this investigation.

In connection with the additional dissemination of the ransom list already furnished the field, all offices are instructed to further disseminate this list on any basis considered practical and appropriately advise the Bureau and office of origin of any positive information developed. The loot in this matter consists entirely of $20 bills and it is questionable that large banks and bank-type institutions would effectively screen their $20 bills due to the volume of this type of bill that would be handled.

All offices should insure that the composite drawing of the unknown subject is thoroughly disseminated to parachute clubs and associated groups with particular attention being

Date of transcription 12/1/71

On November 25, 1971, [redacted]
[redacted] Seattle-First National Bank, the head office being in Seattle, Washington, provided the following information:

b6
b7C

[redacted] upon being advised of the identity of the writer, handed the writer a film canister containing a microfilm, upon which the serial numbers of $250,000 worth of notes were recorded. He advised that of the $250,000 worth of notes, the Federal Bureau of Investigation should only be concerned with the $20 bills, that is the serial numbers of the $20 bills, because the hijacker received only $20 bills. [redacted] stated that there are $230,000 worth of $20 bills recorded on the microfilm. [redacted] advised that in order for the Federal Bureau of Investigation to determine the serial numbers of the $20 bills which the hijacker actually received, we must subtract serial numbers which he provided me from the total list of serial numbers on the microfilm.

b7C

[redacted] provided a list of serial numbers of $20 totaling $30,000 worth of notes, which, although they were on the microfilm itself, were not part of the $200,000 worth of $20 bills which the hijacker received. [redacted] stated that the bank packs $20 bills in packages of 1000. Each packet therefore contains $2,000 worth of $20 bills.

b7C

[redacted] provided the first and last serial number in each of these $20 bill packets and advised that we should subtract both of these numbers, as well as the 98 serial numbers between each of these groups of numbers in order to determine the actual serial numbers of the bills which the hijacker received. These groups of numbers are as follows:

L41197159A thru E12561828B
L33639577A thru L20458572A

BUfile 164-2111

In conference this evening with the SAC, J.E. MILNES, it was decided that we should decide as soon as possible what circularization we are going to make and ask other offices to make of any wanted flyer issued in this case. This should of course, include flying clubs, parachute clubs, air fields, airlines, Veterans' Administration, doctors, hospitals and clinics and possibly others.

Enclosed for the Laboratory are two rolls of microfilm containing serial numbers of bills to be compared to microfilm already on hand in order to determine exact serial numbers of bills given to hijacker..

Microfilm already submitted represents $230,000.00 of which $200,000.00 given to hijacker. New film currently being submitted contains serial numbers of six lots of bills, each containing $50,000.00 totaling $300,000.00. Film 1 contains lots 1 through 5; film 2 contains only lot 6. The $30,000.00 of the original microfilm which was not given to the hijacker is contained either at the end of lot 5 or at the end of lot 6.

The $20 bills in question in lot 5 begin with the serial number L34346374A and end with serial number E50344506A. The $20 bills in question in lot 6 begin with the serial number L18031099B and end with the serial number L09729057B on the microfilm.

Re Seattle teletype, 11/25/71.

Enclosed herewith is one box of Recordak Microfilm (developed) for use in a Recordak Reliant 600K microfilm viewer.

On November 25, 1971, [redacted] [redacted], Seattle-First National Bank, 4th and Madison, Seattle, Washington, provided SA [redacted] with a microfilm canister containing photographs of the serial numbers of $250,000 worth of notes, in various denominations. [redacted] advised that the Bureau should only be concerned with the serial numbers of the $20 bills. The extortion package which was given to the hijacker contained only bills of $20 denomination. [redacted] said the microfilm contained the serial numbers of $230,000 of $20 bills. He provided a list of serial numbers of the $20 bills which were on the microfilm, itself, but were not included in the extortion money package which the Unsub received. These $20 bills are packed in packets of 100 bills; and [redacted] provided the first and last serial numbers in each of these packets of 100 bills. He advised that these serial numbers

On November 27, 1971 [redacted], a man who is familiar with parachute clubs and jumpers in the southwestern part of Washington and northern part of Oregon, advised that a person jumping from a plane at about 7000 feet who had experience could free fall and while doing so could count to 25 seconds which would then place him at 3000 feet and for this reason no altimeter would be needed. He pointed out that if the subject could have seen the ground there would be no problem in landing if he had experience as a jumper. He further pointed out that his experience as a jumper shows him that the subject would not have needed jump boots, a helmet, jump suit, or any other special equipment for he and other chutists jump in shorts, tennis shoes, and other non-jumping equipment when weather conditions are right. He also pointed out that the subject could land within one mile of a pin point spot picked if he had experience and knew when to jump. Further, he stated the subject would have travelled 1/2 to 3/4 of a mile from the drop line from the plane in a 30 mile per hour wind if he opened his chute at 3000 feet. [redacted] also advised that he could also state that if the subject had experience he would know that the easiest place to put a container with the money would be between his legs and this would not cause any problems on landing or during descent. [redacted] suggested one person whom he thought could be capable of the hijacking and that would be [redacted], who is a good and experienced parachutist and pilot.

[redacted] advised that the parachute clubs in the area he is familiar with are the Pacific Parachute Club which uses Donald airfield 30 miles south of Portland, Oregon, and the Western Sport Parachute Center which uses both the Frink field and the Hockinson field near Vancouver, Washington; he pointed out that Puckett airfield is no longer used as a jump center.

b6

On November 28, 1971 [redacted], Vancouver Piper Aviation, 209 East Reserve Street, Vancouver, Washington, was contacted and advised that he and a group of experienced pilots had been discussing the hijacking and he advanced the theory that in view of the cloud cover on the night of November 24, 1971 only an experienced jumper knowing

On 12/4/71
called to suggest that there might be some possibility that a radio receiver was in the hijacker's attache case. This could be used in conjunction with a low frequency transmitter on the ground - to know when to drop. He said this would put one within a 3 mile radius from a 10,000 foot level jump on target.

b6
b7c

However, he noted too, that any transisterized receiver in use should be reflected in the plane instruments - so pilot should be able to tell that such was the case (transceiver in use)

TWO POINT SEVEN POUNDS. SUCH A RECEIVER WOULD REQUIRE A TWELVE
VOLT BATTERY TO OPERATE PROPERLY, AND HORIZONTAL - POLARIZED

[] ADVISED THE MOST LIKELY DEVICE TO BE USED IN SUCH A MANNER, AND DUE TO THE FLIGHT OF THE AIRCRAFT, WOULD BE THE MARKER BEACON RECEIVER, WHICH ACCORDING TO [] COULD BE MADE BY ANY PERSON WPTH THE SLIGHTEST KNOWLEDGE OF COMMUNICATION OR RADIO EQUIPMENT. SUCH A DEVICE COULD BE THE SIZE OF A PACKAGE OF CIGARETTES OR FOR A MORE EXACTING DEVICE, COULD BE ANY SIZE.
